Susi's Airship.
And Other Air News.
Even China Is Awake.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SUSI, female gorilla, passenger on the Graf Zeppelin, interests the crowd more than the real lady passenger.

Susi slept or rested calmly in her cage, through all the high wind and buffeting.

Proud man thinks "poor Susi, she did not even know the was riding through the clouds in an airship. Man set her sailing, she had nothing to say about it."

WHAT about us, Susi's second cousins? Not one in 10,000 white men realizes that he is afloat in space, on an airship, the earth. God set us floting, as Susi's owners set her flying.

IT'S a wonderful airship that we inhabit, heavier than if made of solid steel, whirling round and rounds — its slowest speed 1,000 miles an hour on its axis, its speed around the sun more than 1,500,000 miles a day, 60,000 miles an hour, 1,000 miles a minute.

HUMAN nature is fundamentally good with all its fighting and slaughtering. The French hesitated to let the Zeppelin fly over French territory —too many opportunities for taking photographs, useful in later wars, perhaps.

But when the big ship was in trouble, French soldiers were sent to help, French landing fields and hangars were offered and at this hour, French and German mechanics are working side by side, putting the big dirigible in order.

COL. LINDBERGH announces regular mail service between New York and Buenos Aires in 80 hour. Later the line will be extended, and Lindbergh will start the line, as pilot. Marriage, evidently, will not moderate his flying.

WITH the greatest industrial and financial powers in America competing ing aviation, General Motors, Ford and the National City bank, this nation, in spite of government sluggishness, must be the world's greatest producer of airplanes.

Fortunately any airplane can carry machine guns, and carry bombs and drop them. The country will gradually acquire air protection, in spite of itself.

WHICH of the great concerns will produce the first super-dreadnaught of the air?

Henry Ford planned it, three years ago, a machine with at least twelve powerful engines, carrying 100 men, including mechanics in its own machine shop, costing about one million.

BEFORE that is built, Sloan of General Motors or Mitchell of National City may start a machine, ten times as big.

And who will build the "aerial runabout," small, powerful safe machine,

BLAST VICTIM

Despite the fact that Dr. Crile, founder of the Cleveland clinic, which was recently destroyed following a gas explosion, offered his blood for the transfusion that was necessary to save the life of Dr. John Phillips, above, Crile's assistant and a co-founder of the institution, Phillips died of the gas poisoning, one of the victims which now number over 100.

CORONER CALLS DR. CRILE IN BLAST PROBE

Specialist's Version on Clinic Disaster is Wanted.

CALL DR. LOWER

Investigate Cause of Fire Which Ignited X-ray Films.

CLEVELAND May 20.—(INS)—Dr. George W. Crile, founder of Cleveland Clinic, and one of America's foremost surgeons, today was to give Coroner A. J. Pearse his version of the disaster which last Wednesday destroyed the clinic and claimed 124 lives.

"It is not our intention to question Dr. Crile," the coroner said, "but we know his version of the disaster will be of invaluable assistance in arriving at the cause."

Dr. Crile was performing an operation in clinic hospital, about a block away from the building whic hwas destroyed when the first explosion occurred. He immediately rushed to the scene and aided in administering first aid as the victims were carried from the building.

Dr. William E. Lower, co-founder of the clinic, also was to tell the coroner what he knows of the tragedy. Several theories were being investigated today as to what agency might have ignited the X-ray films in the basement and generated the deadly nitric fumes.

A cigarette, light bulb, heat from a steam pipe or spontaneous combustion might have caused the explosion, in the opinions of the various investigators.

Dr. H. L. Rockwood, city health commissioner, was to hold a meeting in his office this afternoon when reports will be received from various hospitals as to their means for storing X-ray films. Coroner Pearse has not yet set a date for the public inquest which he announces he will hold.

TRAFFIC TOLL OVER WEEK-END STANDS AT SIX

Many Hurt in Auto Crashes Throughout State.

ATHLETES INJURED

Seven Ohioans In Bus Collision Near Butler, Pa.

Ohio's death toll in week-end traffic accidents was unusually light, compared to the heavy number of lives claims by mishaps in previous weeks.

Six persons in the state were known to have been killed.

Many others were hurt, including two Toledo athletes who were injured in a traffic accident near that city.

Seven Ohioans were among the 22 injured in a bus crash near Butler, Pa., yesterday.

Two separate crashes in Michigan, just over the Ohio line, took eight lives, six of them being members of one family.

James Vanoder, 18, was killed late Saturday night in an automobile crash near Columbus.

Columbus traffic had today claimed the lives of two persons. George H. Conner, 57, was struck and killed by a "hit-skip" motorist Sunday. Florabel Delgarn, 2, died in a hospital from injuries sustained when struck by an auto yesterday.

One Ohioan was killed and another was injured in an auto accident five miles south of Covington, Ky. Fred Hollifield, 27, of Bethel, suffered fatal hurts, and Robert Rust, 28, Forestville, sustained severe injuries.

When an automobile driven by Frank Post swerved on the New Lexington-Zanesville road to avoid striking another car, it ran into a crowd of five men walking along the road, killing one and seriously injuring two others. The other two members escaped by jumping from the path of the car. Frank Willison, 33, of Roseville, was killed and Theodore Colbern, 28, and Roland Savage, 22, both of Roseville, were injured.

SEISMOGRAPH REGISTERS SHOCKS

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(INS)—A "very severe" earthquake shock was recorded on the seismograph of Georgetown university this morning.

Father Tondorf, the observer, said the maximum intensity was between 12:33 and 12:37 o'clock, and the shock covered a period of about four hours. Its location was estimated as about 4,600 miles from Washington in a southeasterly direction.

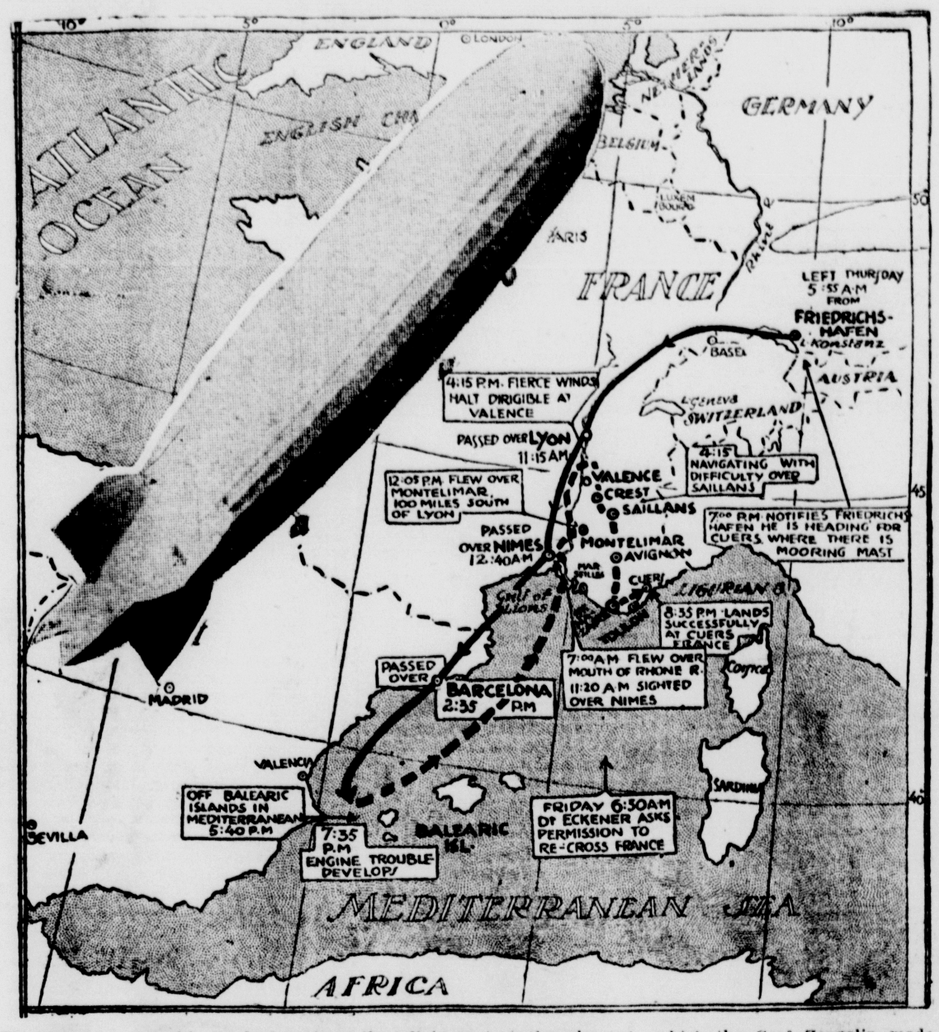

Aseismic disturbance approximately 4,600 miles southeast of Washington might be located in the eastern part of South America, the South Atlantic ocean or the western part of America.

Representatives were present from Columbiana, Belmont and Jefferson counties.

GRAF ZEPPELIN WILL START FLIGHT AFTER REPAIRS

The above map graphically depicts the gallant fight against the elements which the Graf Zeppelin made after four of her five engines were crippled while flying over Spain enroute to the United States. After two engines failed Dr. Hugo Eckener ordered the ship to trun about and head for home. Two more went dead on the way and with only one working the eighteen passengers and crew of the giant airship found themselves drifting helplessly over France towards the Mediterranean. Only the tremendous efforts and skill of Dr. Eckener saved a catastrophe when the Graf finally was landed at Cuers, France. New motors are being rushed to replace the damaged ones and the Graf will proceed to Friedrichshafen. It is believed that the flight to the United States will be tried again after the repairs are made.

COOPER HITS AT GAMBLING ON DOG RACES

Governor Warns That Betting Will Not be Permitted.

FOUR ARRESTED

Races to Continue at West Jefferson Pending Trials.

COLUMBUS, O., May 20.—(INS)—"Betting at dog races in Ohio has got to stop."

Looking askance at officials of Madison county, Governor Myers Y. Cooper today reiterated the foregoing warning against betting at the dog races at West Jefferson, a small Madison county village just over the Franklin county line.

When told of the arrest of four officials of the track by the Madison county sheriff, E. U. Blaugher, which occurred Saturday, the chief executive declared:

"I am not impugning what has been done, but four arrests, or six or eight, are not going to stop dog racing and the attendant gambling. There are measures that will top it and these steps must be taken immediately."

Officials of Madison county were treading lightly. No more arrests will be made, they indicated, until the result of the trial of the four officials of the track is known.

If they can convict the men on charges of gambling, it was declared that more arrests will be made. Until then, it was admitted, dog racing at West Jefferson will continue, as far as Madison county officials are concerned.

WHISKEY KILLS HERD OF COWS

NEW LEXINGTON, O., May 20.—(INS)—"Will whisky kill cows, and do cows drink moonshine?"

This was the real mystery facing Perry county authorities today. Five cows were found dead on the J. B. Nutting and Albert Simmons farms, near here. The only evidence authorities have is an empty whisky jug found near the dead cattle. A pungent liquor odor pervaded the scene. State veterinarians are to be asked to conduct a probe.

CHILD SWALLOWS TABLETS—DIES

COLUMBUS, O., May 20.—(INS)—A baby's impulse to eat everything it can lay its hands on today had claimed the life of two-year-old Gladys E. Gillian. The tot swallowed several medicine tablets found on the floor yesterday. She died a few hours later in a local hospital.

FORTY PERSONS DIE IN EARTHQUAKE

DEATH LIST IN EXPLOSION GROWS TO 124

Cleveland Man Succumbs to Poisonous Fumes Saturday.

PROBES LAUNCHED

Three Victims of Blast Still in Critical Condition.

CLEVELAND, May 20. — (INS) — With only two or three patients from the Cleveland clinic disaster remaining in critical condition, the city was hopeful today that the grim death toll, totaling 124 names, would mount no higher.

The last name added to the list was that of Herman Kornfeld, 74, Cleveland, who succumbed late Saturday night to the effects of inhaling poisonous fumes from burning X-ray films in the clinic. He was a patient in the hospital at the time of the explosion.

Various separate investigations into the cause of the disaster will be climaxed by a formal public inquest announced by Coroner A. J. Pearse. The inquest probably will start within the next few days, the coroner said.

The inquiries conducted by Coroner Pearse and a city commission headed by Health Commissioner H. L. Rockwood were resumed today after marking time over the week-end. Buffery Boggs, the steamfitter who was in the basement room and escaped death when the sheer force of the explosion of deadly gases blew him into the next room, is expected to be the principal witness at the coroner's inquest. Sam Steele, an employe of the clinic, who was also in the basement, will be another important witness.

Coroner Pearse declined to say whether or not he would summon Dr. George W. Crile, founder of the clinic, but said he knew the famous surgeon would be glad to appear if he were asked.

Y. & S. LINE ACQUIRED BY COAL INTERESTS

Commission Asked for Rehearing on Rail Project.

CHEAPER RATES

New Line Would Require 18 Miles of New Trackage.

The Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western Railroad, recently acquired by the Pittsburgh Coal corporation today renewed its fight for a direct rail connection between the Ohio river and the Mahoning valley steel district when an application for permission to contruct a short branch between Smiths Ferry, Pa., and Columbiana was filed with the Interstate Commerce commission at Washington.

Y. & S. Railroad Acquired.

Control of the Youngstown & Suburban electric railroad between Youngstown and Columbiana, via Leetonia, has been secured by the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western railroad. The P. L. & W. proposes to construct a six mile gap from the present Youngstown & Suburban tracks near Columbiana to connect with the present railroad line between Signal and Rogers and then to build a new 12-mile branch from Negley to Smiths Ferry, over the same route which was surveyed about two years ago.

The Interstate Commerce commission in a ruling handed down about a month ago refused the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western Railroad company permission to construct the 12-mile branch from Smiths Ferry to Negley and a 25-mile line from Millrock into Youngstown.

The original application was denied on the grounds that it would involve a duplication of existing facilities and investment because the Pennsylvania and the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroads could handle the traffic.

75-Cent Rate Proposed.

Since that time these carriers have filed a rate from the Ohio river to Youngstown via their lines, of $1.02 a ton. Backers of the proposed new railroad declare that deliveries of coal to Youngstown can be made for 75 cents a ton if the new railroad is built.

If the interstate commerce commission grants the request, construc-

Ground Troops Mobilized For Gigantic Peace-Time Demonstration In Mock War

Battle of The Skies in Which 200 Airplanes Take Part Ends in Fatal Crash.

By International News Service

With the fatal midair crash of Saturday partially forgotten, the 11-day mock war in Ohio continued today with the concentration of ground troops in preparation for the second phase of the greatest "peace-time" demonstration ever staged by the United States army.

Hitherto, the war was a "battle in the skies," between the red (Columbus) and blue (Dayton army air forces, each consisting of about 100 airplanes.

With the stroke of midnight, the ground maneuvers will begin. The airplanes will be used in a secondary capacity for locating enemy troop positions and dropping simulated bombs on mythical encampments, artillery, trenches and ammunition "dumps."

Many eyes in the state figuratively, turned to Dayton today as preparations got under way for the non-stop flight of a Larbe bomber to New York and return. It will be refueled in mid-air twice. Over New York the plane will drop several parachute flares, which will represent bombs.

First Battle Will be Staged Near Banks of Big Darby Creek West Of Columbus.

Panels, indicating a mythical force of some 8,000 troops are being placed today and will be subject to attack from the 1,600 "real" soldiers, which will be the "backbone" of the opposing forces. The first ground battle, it is reported, will take place along Big Darby Creek, West of Columbus with the rising of the sun tomorrow.

28 Graduates Hear Sermon Sunday Night

Rev. L. A. Britton Preaches at Baccalaureate Services in Church of Christ.

CHESTER, W. Va., May 20. — The Rev. L. A. Britton, pastor of the First Church of Christ, delivered the sermon at baccalaureate services in the church last night for 28 members of the 1929 class of the Chester high school. His subject was "The Prize of Life."

The services, which were attended by other ministers of the city and members of their congregation, were featured by special numbers by an augmented choir.

Text of Sermon.

The Rev. Mr. Britton said in part:

"The Apostle Paul was an unsatisfied man, although he was a man of large attainments. He felt there was more knowledge to be acquired, nobler speech to be uttered. The satisfied man has reached his goal. His best work is behind him.

"We are all runners on life's great race track. The first condition of successful running is 'do.' This one thing I do. I maintain that doing is the chief end of life—being is for the sake of doing. I am that I may do, not that I merely exist. What you are may determine what you do, but doing is the end.

"If you would win the prize do one thing. One useful job is big enough for the biggest man. Better do one thing well than two things fairly well. The right thing is essential. Find out the way your talents run and follow their dictates. Magnify your calling. Never be jealous of another's work; if you are doing the right thing well you do not have to be.

"Sentiment has its place but it is not the main dish; it is only the seasoning. Forget the things that are behind. To habitually look back is to fail—do not allow the past to absorb the present, let it inspire you rather.

Education Only Begun.

"If you would win the prize stretch toward those things which are before. Your education is not complete—it has only begun. Great things are ahead. There are future scientists, statesmen, philosophers and preachers, as great as ever existed in the past.

"Press toward the goal. There is no prize for the loafer. Choose a work worthy of one made in God's image. Begin life right by taking Jesus Christ as your silent partner. Do nothing that will ever bring a blush of shame to your face, or to the face of another."

City Hospital Safeguards

There is no danger of a repetition in East Liverpool of the Cleveland clinic explosion, fire and gas tragedy which exacted more than 120 lives, according to attaches at the City hospital.

Every possible precaution has been taken to protect patients, nurses and physicians from death or injury in the operation of the X-ray room, Dr. J. W. Chetwynd, in charge of the department, says.

Old X-ray films, blamed in the Forest City disaster, are stored in a fire-proof cabinet. Unused films are kept in a lead-lined chest. Should an explosion occur while films are being developed, the deadly fumes would be carried outside the building by reason of the arrangement of the dark room.

And if the investigation now under way in Cleveland reveals the need of additional safeguards, it is a foregone conclusion that prompt action will be taken by the trustees of the Ceramic City institution.

Despite the meagre allowance through taxation, the East Liverpool hospital, comparatively speaking, is one of the best equipped in the state. Thanks for this encouraging situation are due to friends of the institution who have been liberal in personal contributions.

Meditated Marriage

It is forecast that by 1931 Ohio may have another law intended to curtail the number of hasty marriages and justified divorces. This law, sponsored by the Ohio League of Women Voters, provides that a period of five days shall elapse between the time of application for a marriage license and the date of issue. It is contended that five days' meditation on the subject would change the minds of some persons who rush into the matrimonial net on impulse.

The cynic might well make the observation that if impulse as a motivation for marriage were checked, the number of marriages would be diminished. He would, in all probability, be justified in making such a remark, but nothing is proved. Marriage based on impulse is rarely successful, because reason, and plenty of it, has to be exercised to make marriage bonds anything but galling chains on frequent occasions. And it might be said that reason, in this case, is almost synonpmous with self control.

It is true that many cases of divorce are settled out of court by the application of the principle included in the ambition of the Ohio League of Woman Voters. In a large number of cases, a conference, after a few days of deliberation, is sufficient to bring the estranged couple back into the fold, at least in cases where there is a foundation of personal affection amounting to more than animal friendship.

No serious objections to the law are apparent. There is the possibility of an ironic situation in cases where couples have waited for 10 or 15 years before taking the final step which will be halted for a five-day additional maditation period, but 120 hours after 10 years wouldn't make much difference.

The law will probably come up for consideration in 1931. That is long enough to provide an escape for a lot of impulsive couples in the interim.

Suppressing Red Army

While it may be, as the German reds have claimed, that they did not hope to overthrow the government of Germany on May day and establish in its stead the misgovernment which has made Russians the world's most afflicted people, but that their purpose was merely to try out their strength, the result of their rioting may have other effects that the deaths of twenty-four and the wounding of hundreds, chiefly of their own circle. It may result in causing the German government to try out its strength against them.

The decree of the Prussian minister of the interior in suppression of the "Red Front Fighters" throughout the Reich may be taken as an indication of the government's purpose in that direction.

Berlin advices are to the effect that the dissolution of the political red army will lose to the German reds their most militant an' effective fighting organization. That it will provoke serious resistance on the part of the Communist representatives in the reichstag and Prussian diet and cause a renewal in an intensified form of the noisy demonstrations which followed the suppression of the Communist's chief organ, the "Rote Fahne," is beyond question, especially so since the ban placed on the red army comes from the Prussian Socialist minister, who, like the Berlin Socialist chief of police, is the object of their bitterest hate.

However, it seems to be the thought of the government that, no matter what the result may be, there is no better time than the present to put down Communist activities. No government can long endure if it permits a militant organization, not only openly to defy it, but to defy all rules of law and order.

American Artists Abroad

For many years Americans have looked to European artists for great musical treats. In recent years artists have been born and trained in America and hailed with appreciation and enthusiasm abroad, making the compliments and pleasures mutual.

A few years ago an American-trained chorus competed in the great Welsh song festival and won first honors.

This year the boy violinist from California and New York, Yehudi Menuhin, has brought Berlin audiences to their feet cheering.

In Berlin and London other audiences have given most cordial and enthusiastic applause to the Westminster choir of Dayton, O.

Such events are of importance not only for the goodwill that goes with them, but because they prove to Americans, as well as to the rest of the world, that we are now taking part in the world's creative art. Our national role is no longer confined to that of spectators, patrons, audiences. We give and create as well as support and enjoy musicians and music.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20.—While the United States may continue to assume a role of political isolation in so far as the League of Nations and other entangling alliances are concerned, this country is constantly departing farther and farther from any isolated role in respect to science and commerce, and is now practically in constant conference, both officially and unofficially, with the other nations of the world on a great variety of business and educational matters.

On one day recently, four separate announcements were made of the appointment of official delegates from the United States to four international meetings in Europe, dealing respectively with radio, aviation, water power, and soils. At these meetings, and at others of like general character being held almost continuously, our delegates are entering into all sorts of agreements with the delegates from other nations, ranging from actual treaties down the line through conventions, protocols, and unofficial but written contracts to mere gentlemen's agreements for the conduct of this or that necessary international arrangement.

Aloofness from other nations remains, in fact, only a political condition with the United States. We are not in the League of Nations, nor have the negotiations of Elihu Root yet brought us into the World court. We are in a hundred and one arrangements with the nations of the world on every sort of practical subject. Our participation in the German reparations negotiations is semi-official only, although everyone knows that Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan have the moral support of the United States government. Our participation in the disarmament negotiations has been official, and Gibson spoke for the United States government.

Quite recently for example, President Hoover has named delegates to the international commission for air navigation, which meets in Paris in June. Assistant Secretary of Commerce W. P. MacCracken and Joseph R. Baker of the department of state will be our delegates, with technical advisers chosen from out military and naval aviation aids at foreign posts. This commission on air navigation grew out of the treaty which ended the World war, which this country signed but did not ratify.

In September we will be represented at the International Radio commission meeting at The Hague, our delegate being Harold A. Lagount, a member of our own official radio commission. Radio transmission can not be confined to national boundaries, and we must needs entered into international agreements covering this enormous and more or less new subject.

President Hoover recently named David B. Rushmore, of New York, as American delegate to the World Power conference which is already under way in Barcelona, Spain. Our delegate to the Soils conference at Dantzig, is Dr. Curtis F. Marbut, of the department of agriculture. We are annually represented at the narcotic conferences held at Geneva under the auspices of the League of Nations, usually by Representative Stephen Porter, chairman of the foreign affairs committee of our house of representatives. We have delegates to international conferences on labor conditions, veterans welfare, crime, child welfare, health, and a great variety of commercial and trade practices, standardizations of machinery, and scientific subjects. It is doubtful whether there is a business day in the year when American delegates are not engaged in conferences which lead to international agreements, although we do not always ratify all of the agreements by official act of the United States senate.

Our state department at Washington keeps track of all these activities, separates the official from the unofficial, and tabulates the results as they affect both international law and international custom. Owing to our size and influence in the world, it is not infrequently that our delegates are offered the presiding place at these gatherings, and seldom less than a vice presidency.

The United States is far from an isolated nation, other than in a limited political sense applying to the League of Nations and the World Court. In almost every other sense we are a part of, if not the center of, world-wide activities which must of necessity be regulated by world-wide agreements. Our department of state is a constant hive of industry, keeping track of all our international activities and relationships, keeping the official and the unofficial properly segregated, and maintaining a harmonious balance between political isolation and commercial internationalism.

Q. How many acres of made land are there along the lake front in Chicago? Where was the dirt obtained? E. H.

A. The Chicago Chamber of Commerce says that there is a total of 783 acres of made land along the water front. The South Park Board has filled in 600 acres and the Lincoln Park Board 183 acres. The material used for this filling in has been obtained from various places—dredging of the Chicago river in straightening and widening projects; dreging of Lake Michigan; and general city waste. The top layer of soil is obtained from farm lands.

Q. What is the food value of whiskey? A. A. H.

A. The only food value in whisky is in the alcohol which it contains. If a small quantity of whiskey is ingested the alcohol probably will be burned and converted into heat and energy before it does much harm to the organs of the body. As a rule the harm done by whisky to body functions far over-balances any food value which the alcohol therin contains. In fact the food value of whiskey is nil. As whiskey has no food value except in the oxidation of the alcohol, the number of calories arising from this oxidation is so small as to be negligible.

Q. When did France finish paying her war indemnity? M. L. B.

A. According to a treaty of peace ending the Franco-Prussian War, France was to pay to Germany a war indemnity of $5,000,000,000 francs ($1,000,000,000). The last instalment of the war indemnity was paid on September 5, 1873.

Q. What is the "49th State"? V. S.

A. The term, 49th State, was originated by the St. Louis Globe Democrat. It is applied to an area within a radius of approximately 150 miles of St. Louis.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Out fairly early with Verne Porter, the indoor athlete, to play ten pins and spent the rest of the day doubled up like the aching figure in a kidney pill ad. Afterward to feast on a haunch of venison, fried apple rings and dropped corn pone.

Home with a high resolve to work, but a carpenter hanging a door provided fine excuse to loaf, so off again, it proving mightily expensive with foolish purchases here and there. So through a deserted street, talking to myself until I heard footsteps behind and began to tra-la-la as though singing.

In the evening to see "The Little Show" a smart revue, too, and then to join my wife, Regina Wallace and others at the Mayfair, and some celebrities there, but few that interested me. Then carried Bruce and Esther Barton home in my benzine buggy, and to bed.

In the Black Belt of Harlem the "dictys" live between Seventh and Edgecombe avenues on 136th, 137th and 139th streets, and there are many, too, in those imposing apartment houses on Bradhurst and St. Nicholas avenues. "Dictys" are the high-toned colored folk, the creme de la creme of vanvechtenized top notchers. The warfare for social position is as keen as on Park Avenue or Murray Hill. Here rage the odd contradictory prejudices light-skinned Negroes have for darker brothers and sisters. In Harlem the "brown skin" is a personage. They may go anywhere and mingle with whom they choose, but "coal blacks" often find themselves pariahs among their own people. So marked is the color distinction the highly educated black girl cannot hope to cope socially with her most illiterate light-skinned sister.

One of the locally celebrated Harlem shieks is a piano player in a cabaret who bears a slight resemblance to the late and lamented Valentino. He is saddle colored with oily jet hair brushed sleekly black, and a vagabond flair for life. He has his own brilliantly red car and a "studio" on Edgecombe avenue, and his wardrobe is the real sartorial boom-boom on the Lenox avenue promenade.

Another figure—and a sorry one—in the Harlem black-and-tans, is a white woman whose family has standing and background of culture. She dresses in the masculine mode and a cigarette is always drooping from her lips in the best taxicab driver manner. She sits at tables with Negroes and dances with them when asked. Woozy from gin most of the time, she is a big spender, but is merely tolerated. Her limousine and chauffeur waiting at the curb are a familiar sight uptown.

A Broadway observer discovers there are scarcely any records of the chorus girls of 25 years ago who, in petticoats and frilled panties, kicked chimney stack hats off the chorus men of that period. Nothing particular happened. They just passed quietly out of the picture. A few acquired passing fame, but none capitalized it by grabbing a millionaire, as many stage beauties have done since.

Up in Van Cortland Park a gentleman saw one of those absurd birds with a long beak that stands on one foot and twists his nesk into the figure eight to peck at a cootie. Having just left a cocktail party, the gentleman decided it would be just dandy to take the bird home. You know, surprise the little woman. Well, he got within reaching distance and the flamingo—that can't be right, it's the name of a hotel isn't it?—reached, too, and with one thrust let the gentleman have it on the thigh clear up to the hilt. He was in a hospital eight days and today he doesn't care that for any kind of a bird you can mention.

It is only a clod-hopper's horse-back view, but it seems to me there is an over-stressing of the supposed courtesy in metropolitan mercantile establishments. It has a studied and glacial aloofness. The little store at the cross-roads with its calico curtained-off living room in the back beats them at politeness by ten city blocks. This morning I stepped into a jewelry house and asked an austere attendant if I might regulate my watch to his dial. "If it is necessary!" he replied, and I could have cuffed him. He is not only a cad but a fellow!

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

It is just as natural to want to fondle a baby as it is to peek at one when you pass a baby carriage. The soft little things, sweet and lovable, make an appeal to the most hard boiled of human beings.

But babies should not be fondled. It is bad for them. More than this, it is positively dangerous.

Some persons are so fascinated by new-born chicks that they do not trust themselves to take the fluffy little things in their hands. There is a positive temptation to squeeze the attractive birdlets to death.

If you resist the temptation to fondle a baby chick, why should you be possessed to fondle a human baby? Yet you can hardly resist the impulse to do so.

You can't blame young parents for being crazy over the first baby. The long days of anxiety are over and they are more than rewarded by the precious gift. It is natural to bounce and jiggle and toss and kiss the sweet smelling infant.

But, dear parents, you musn't. The tender muscles, the frail back-bone, the soft little head, the delicate organs, are not strong enough for play. Careful as you may be, your handling is too rough for the child. You must be patient. You must wait.

The less you fiddle and fuss with the infant the more it will grow in strength. What a new-born baby needs is sleep. It must be left alone.

You needn't think the baby will be lonesome. You needn't think you are neglecting it.

On the contrary, when you practice self-control and leave the baby to its own devices, the better you are as a parent. By so doing you will be entitled to all the prizes as a model parent.

Cruel? Of course I am. But I am truthful and for once, certainly, strictly scientific.

Kissing a baby in the mouth, is really a crime. It should be prohibited by law if anything should be. Kiss it on the back of the neck, if you wish, but never on the mouth.

In our noses and on our lips are many germs. They mean little to us hardened grown-ups. We have powers of resistance, the products of long years of contact with these evil agents. We are not easily victimized by such things. But a baby is different.

To an adult a cold is usually an ailment of little consequence. Perhaps we do not pay as much attention to our colds as we should, but, anyhow we survive them. But there is not the same certainty that a baby will survive a hard cold.

It is really remarkable how a baby wears down if it gets a nasal infection. There is danger of an ear complication. There is a possibility of pneumonia. Even if it is no more than a nasal disturbance and never goes farther, it undermines the vitality of the tender infant.

It is true of the father, particularly, that he may bring from the outside world germs that are unfriendly to little babies. He should not touch the child until he has thoroughly washed hands and face with soap and water. It will be better still if he changes his clothes. After this he may take the child in his arms and admire it from a distance of several inches.

A Betrayal of Democracy.

John W. Davis, former Democratic candidate for president and one of the ablest lawyers in this country, is the latest to point out that while the direct primary is fine in theory it is a denial of a democracy practice.

In a lecture at Princeton university, Mr. Davis pointed out that the direct primary "has impaired the efficiency of political parties by multiplying factions among them and candidates are exposed to a barrage of abuse during the preliminary campaign which sends them wounded and limping into the final battle. By separating nominations from the business of platform-making it has made the platform less and less important and its contents less binding on the candidates themselves. Party government without party responsibility is a delusion, just as party candidacy without some degree of party loyalty is a false pretense."

Youngstown knows htis by experience. Parties do not count for anything with us any more. Men take the labels of Democrats and Republicans and set themselves up for office, expecting Democratic and Republican support if they are elected. But they run as individuals, they have no platforms, they owe no allegiance to the party or its leaders, and they are Democrats or Republicans only for the sake of getting votes. This is the very breakdown of representative government.—Youngstown Vindicator.

DR. DEAN SPEAKS ON GOSPEL HERE

Final Sermon Before Leaving for General Assembly.

On the eve of his departure to assume his duties as commissioner to the General Assembly of his denomination which convenes this week in St. Paul, Minn., Dr. F. A. Dean, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, who is one of the two representatives from the Steubenville presbytery to this annual gathering declared the gospel of Jesus Christ to be of divine origin at the service yesterday morning.

"A message of good tidings from the whole of the New Testament with which man had nothing to do and which God released in his own good time it was purely of divine origin," he affirmed. "We must trust the gospel for no man can add to it or take one whit away from it."

Accompanied by his fellow commissioner from the Steubenville presbytery, the Rev. H. M. Peebels of the Bethesda church near Salineville, Dr. Dean left this morning for Chicago. They will reach St. Paul tomorrow.

Both Dr. Dean and the Rev. Mr. Peebles have been delegated by the presbytery to sit in on the meeting on Tusday afternoon of the Evangelistic committee of the assembly. The next day on Wednesday they will also in the capacity of observers hear the deliberations of the National Foreign Missionary committees and those on the Board of Pensions and Christian Education.

All of these committee sessions will be preliminary to the openinfg of the Assembly on Thursday morning when the present Moderator, Dr. Hugh Kelsey Walker, of Los Angeles, Cal., will deliver his annual sermon which is to be followed by a general communion service.

The election of the Moderator for this year will follow in the afternoon session of the opening day. Dr. Dean affirmed that so far no advances have been made to him as to his vote for this important official.

Dr. Dean will likely attend some of the sessions of the World's Fundamental Conference which will convene at Minneapolis, the sister city of St. Paul on May 23. It will continue until June 2 while the Assembly, it is expected will conclude its deliberations on May 30.

The Fundamental Conference will be presided over by the Rev. R. B. Riley, famed Baptist pastor of St. Paul, Minn. It is likely, Dr. Dean stated, that Paul Rader, of Chicago, and Dr. Gerald Winrod, of Kansas City, Mo., will be present. Both, it will be remembered, spoke in East Liverpool during a recent meeting.

Two commissioner-elders will also accompany Dr. Dean and the Rev. Mr. Peebles to the Assembly meeting They are A. G. Smith, of Yellow Creek and I. I. Holmes, of Carrollton.

"Though we or an angel from heaven preached any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed" quoted Dr. Dean from Paul's assertion to the Galatians in affirming the divine inspiration of the gospels.

He said that even as then there were those who troubled believers and would pervert the gospel.

"The test of the gospel is grace," he said. "Let those who deny the Virgin Birth, the resurrection, the plenary inspiration of the Bible, and the life after death test it by believing. In this trust will come an experience that will make for divine grace which will be its own proof."

COLORFUL STORY AT AMERICAN

The great mess hall of a French Moroccan military post, thronged with soldiers, their wives and other women of the establishment forms one of the colorful settings of "The Desert Song," the tremendously popular operetta which has just reached the screen as a Warner Brothers' Vitaphone production. It is the attraction at the American theater.

Entertainment at this colorful military gathering is supplied by a group of Nautch dancing girls headed by the exotic Azuri, whose contortions are summarily halted by the unexpected entrance of General Birabeau, commandent of the post.

It is in this setting, too, that the entire chorus of 100 voices is heard in a spirited rendition of the beautiful French Marching Song, one of the most inspiring ensemble numbers ever written for a musical play.

Throughout the production, in addition to the dialogue of the characters, are the songs and choruses which have served to make "The Desert Song" perhaps the most sensationally successful operetta in the history of the stage.

The all-star cast of players includes John Boles, Louise Fazenda, Carlotta King, Myrna Loy, John Miljan, Johnny Arthur Marie Wells, Jack Pratt, Edward Martindel, Robert E. Guzman, Otto Hoffman and many others.

PULITZER WINNER ON STATE SCREEN

The rise of an American Anatole France, as Thornton Wilder has been proclaimed by literary critics of America, is signalized in the latest and one of the most striking dramas of the screen, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," based on his Pulitzer prize-winning novel, and filmed with dialogue and talking sequences, now at the State theater.

This new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, with its impressive and spectacular settings and intense dramatic theme, is one of the most talked-of pictures of the season. Raquel Torres, Ernest Torrence, Lily Damita, Jane Winton, Henry B. Walthall, Emily Fitzroy, Tully Marshall, Mitchell Lewis, Mikhail Vavitch and many others of note are in the cast.

The vivid scene in which the great bridge breaks, done with a structure two hundred feet long across a deep chasm, the impressive and awe-inspiring cathedral scene, and other vivid deails fill the elaborate romance.

CERAMIC OFFERS JAZZ AGE HIT

"Girls Gone Wild," first co-featured vehicle for the new Fox team of youngsters—Sue Carol and Nick Stuart—has opened a three-day engagement at the Ceramic theater today.

It is a story of the jazz age, revolving about a high-stepping high school crowd of which Babs Holworthy, played by Sue Carol, is the leader.

Nick Stuart has the role of Buck Brown, son of a traffic policeman, who is dazzled by the wealthy and effervescent Babs.

A bootlegger, enacted by Roy D'Arcy, plays a prominent part in the story, which becomes highly exciting with his entrance into the select group of gay high school girls and boys. John Darrow has been cast for the role of "Speed" Wade, a lounge lizard companion of "Babs," who makes things tough for "Buck Brown."

BETWEEN YOU AND ME

BY JOAN

To store our memories with sense of injuries is to fill that chest with rusty iron, which was made for refined gold.

Continuing the story of Rip Van Winkle who took that twenty-year nap without first making provision for his family's comfort . . . let's not be too severe with poor Rip. Things were different back there in the dark ages. There wasn't any reliable insurance company to consult then like the Lee C. Cooper Agency. While we're tempted to censure Mr. Van Winkle for being such a sleepy-head we jolly well know there are any number of well-meaning folks who are sound asleep to the importance of carrying sound insurance against losses by fire, windstorm, tornadoes and utomobile theft. How about it?

Nothing is more betraying than a head of hair that is perfectly straight on top and curly at the ends. It doesn't fool anyone . . . it looks to be just what it really is . . a pemanent that has grown out. And probably up until now, your friends have thought you had naturally curly hair. I'm sure they did if you went to the Stern Beauty Shoppe. Their permanents are the nearest thing I know to naturally curly hair.

Of course, it isn't possible to burn the present house and magically erect a new one in its ashes . . but it can be made into a place of color and beauty with a little clever planning and some fresh wall paper. However, in order to make sure of results, I suggest you confer with authorities on the subject . . . I refer to Geo. C. Smith & Son, Interior decorators. Their service department will aid you with suggestions and they have a most complete line of beautiful wall coverings from which to choose.

Just arrived! In time to number them among His graduation gifts and it's a wonder you didn't "hear" them coming in . . . so hilarious are these new Nobelt Pajamas. These pajamas you know, are noted for their quality of material and comfort as well. The waistband is guaranteed to retain its elasticity for a year. Feature that! Ogilvie's have a complete stock of these superior pajamas in fancy striped materials and modernistic patterns, reasonably priced. I hope you select your's before the prettiest ones are all gone.

I saw several young Misses trying on the new Sun-back dresses while I was in LEMMER'S. Cleverly styled frocks they were in glorious shades and so charmingly youthful that I grew curious to explore the entire sports-wear department. I couldn't begin to tell you about all the different styles I saw but I will say the frock with carigan to accompany it leads the grand march. Whether or not you have a definite idea of what your sports ensemble will be I know you'll enjoy viewing this display at Lemmer's. You'll be surprised at the variety.

A lady said to me the other day, "I didn't know Weaver's Coffee Shoppe were serving a special plate luncheon for 50 cents. Two of the girls from the office went there Friday and they were delighted with the food and the quiet, pleasant surroundings. Today marks the beginning of the second week of the plate luncheons but there may be some like our friend who "didn't know." Let's pass the good news along! —Adv.

Watch for this danger signal—a dirty ring around the washtubs

HAVE you seen it in your washtubs? Of course you have! Do you know what it means? Of course you know that it means the washing has been done in hard water. Soap combined with the hardness and made scum. The scum collected dirt, some went into the clothes, some formed the dirty ring.

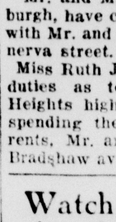

Soften hard water with Melo and it becomes a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. No dirty ring! White clothes! Soap saved, from ⅓ to ½ the amount ordinarily used. Use Melo wherever you need soft water. Notice how much more effective the soap is! Get Melo at your grocer's.

A Quick Way To End Baby's Upset Spells

"Like other young mothers, I worried every time Baby cried," says a Syracuse, N. Y. woman. "Several times when she was upset or constipated, I tried castor oil but she wouldn't retain it. Our doctor told me to try Fletcher's Castoria because it is harmless and babies like it. That ended my worries and I've used it since for all my children." Castoria never fails to delight mothers by the quick way it ends those upsets of babies and children, such as colic, constipation, colds, etc. That's the reason for its tremendous sale and popularity. Like all good things, it's imitated, but genuine Castoria—the purely-vegetable product — always bears the Fletcher signature.—Adv.

YARDSTICK high—just right for laundry tubs and ease in operation. Only 24" in diameter. Takes up no more room than a kitchen chair
THE NEW GAINADAY is compact, and fully enclosed. No cumbersome looking exposed mechanism to harm you or the children. No "hard to get at" dirt-catching corners. A wipe of the cloth and its clean.

AVIATORS LAND AT UNIONTOWN

Plane Forced Down by Leak in Gas Tank.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 20.—(INS)—Discovering that due to a leak in their tank they were out of gas, two Kansas City aviators enroute to Philadelphia from Columbus, circled over the craggy Chestnut ridge 3,000 feet above sea level today, then brought their plane to a perfect landing on the fairway of the Summit hotel golf course in the only level spot within sixty-three miles.

The fliers, Fred J. Nagle and Thomas Nowell, both of Kansas City, discovered their predicament while they were soaring over one of the most hazardous spots in the Alleghenies below them they spied the No. 7 fairway of the golf course and volplaned down, narrowly averting a crash into the woods lining the course.

A truck on the links hurried to their rescue, sped to the hotel for gas, and the fliers were again on their way within an hour after landing.

Aviation experts here pointed out that had the fliers failed to locate the golf course, there was no possibility of landing without a crash.

RIVER REACHES 17.7 FOOT CREST

The Ohio river was falling at the rate of one tenth foot every three hours today after reaching a crest of 17.7 feet at midnight Saturday night. The reading at noon at Dam No. 8 was 16.4 feet.

47 STATES IN EDISON CONTEST

ORANGE, N. J., May 20.—(INS)—Every state in the union with the exception of Kansas has agreed to send a boy here to take part in the Thomas A. Edison scholarship plan through which the famous inventor expects to train a young man to carry on his work, it was announced at the Edison plant today.

Rail Application Filed

tion of the tracks over the six mile distance is expected to start soon.

Success of the entire plan hinges upon the action of the interstate commerce commission. If the permission is granted, the Youngstown & Suburban will be connected with the Erie railroad and Youngstown steel plants, so as to give industries north of the city the benefit of the lower freight charges.

River Connection.

At its eastern terminus the P. L. & W. connects with the Pennsylvania at New Galilee, in Beaver county, Pa.

If the purchase of the Y. & S. by the P. L. & W. is ratified, it is the intention of the P. L. & W. owners to build two laterals, branching off at Boardman Center. One of these would run to Struthers and the other would run westward and connect with the Austintown branch of the Erie railroad in Austintown twp.

These two laterals were also proposed by the promoters of the rejected railroad plan.

There will be no change in railroad officials with the sale of the Youngstown & Suburan railroad. Whether part of the line will later be converted to a steam line is not intimated, but the Y. & S. management emphasizes that regardless of what is done in this respect the line from Boardman to Youngstown will always remain an electric line with passenger service.

Pottery City Week By Week

With Apologies to O. O. McIntyre

The qualities of a Good Samaritan were revealed to many on the steps of the postoffice on a recent afternoon when a bit of wind caught the entire stock of newspapers when a small boy had placed on the widened section of the lower steps leading into it. They were blown in every direction. It so happened that the Central school building children were passing on their way home. A coterie of them saw the mishap and with one accord, though all of them were young girls, they dashed into the streets, dodging the heavy traffic, to retrieve the missing parts. Then a woman or two aided them, they forgot everything as they assisted in replacing the papers to their original forms. "Here I will take one," one of the school girls said to the lad, who had lost considerable business by this time And others did likewise.

They saw in passing one of their number in distress; they instantly rushed to his aid. That done they went further by investing in something they did not really need for doubtless the same papers were already being delivered on the porches of their homes. And it suggested the long-ago affirmation in the McGuffy readers: "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

A new rope will likely be placed on the huge steel flag-pole just off the city lot in West Sixth street before Memorial day, if present plans of Clarence West materialize. "The rope looks as though it had completed its service," he commented recently. "From his estimates 170 feet of rope will be necessary to handle the large flag used on it. The latter is kept in the oil station on the lot and flown on special occasions.

There are 23 places in East Liverpool where women's dresses can be purchased," declared a business man today. This estimate would indicate that the demands of womankind have an ardent appeal upon many with mercantile aspirations. The fact will also go far in describing the activity of women. To inspect all or part of these shos in order to catch the drift of the prevailing styles should prompt thoughts of Paris where such a pastime is said to reach its maximum end.

Many in East Liverpool will remember "Red" Merryman, long a proofreader on the Review and the Tribune when the latter was published. He is now in a similar position with Kable Brothers, of Mt. Morris, Ill., which is situated near the farm home of former Gov. Lowden, twice a presidential candidate in Republican conventions.

The firm prints many of the religious, fraternal and club magazines. "Red" reads much of the proof on them. He has purchased a home in the town and is taking a likely interest in the development of his four children. He still keeps an eye in the degree possible on the movements of East Liverpool stage operators among whom he used to function and with whom he was ever a favorite.

Passengers on the across-country busses become as well acquainted in a short time as do those on ships crossing the sea. Just a few days ago an East Liverpool woman went to St. Louis, on one of them Leaving here in the afternoon, she reached Chicago, about 4 o'clock the next morning. Some time that night she arrived at her destination.

Stops were made every hour. Even the busses, she said, stop before fine restaurants so that the bus patrons may have the best food available.

How very small the world is was indicated a few days ago when Dr. George, of the Little building, received greetings from Homer Rodeheaver from California. They were brought here by Mr. and Mrs. John Vodrey who just before they started on their return trip to East Liverpool following the spending of the winter, attended a service there in which Rodeheaver was singing. Noting them he instantly mentioned East Liverpool to the audience. Later he had a few words with them and by them sent remembrances to his friend, the local dentist.

Continued rainfall in this district may prove a serious hardship so far as garden truck is considered unless the opportunity comes shortly for planting. "Just now we have only some cabbage in the ground, one tiller said: "Corn is usually put in from the sixth to the tenth of May in order to have it fully developed in time to cut after maturity before the first frosts in the fall. Just now the rain is pounding the newly plowed surface into a semi-hardness that makes harrowing a secondary necessity before seeding can be attempted."

Government enginers who recently spent some time along the river between here and Wellsville have put out markers of white and maroon coloring by which river pilots are warned of a new bar in the stream run which empties into the river just below the Newell, W. Va., bridge and extends almost to Jethro.

ORY HEAD SAYS ENFORCEMENT WORK GAINING

V. A. Schreiber Speaks At East End Church.

HITS CRITICS

Former Potter in Pulpit of Baptist Church.

That law enforcement was improving despite propaganda of wet forces to the contrary was declared by V. A. Schreiber, former mayor of East Liverpool and at present the district superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of Ohio with headquarters at Canton, at the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning.

He noted the efforts of the public press in many instances in stressing facts that would make officers of the law amenable to censure.

Mr. Schreiber was introduced by the pastor, the Rev. R. C. Beechley, who, in the night presented Dr. H. S. Powell, the superintendent of the Steubenville district of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Dr. Powell spoke of the Bible being the word of God, asserting it was a revelation from God and that an acquaintance with it would open the eyes spiritually of all perusing it.

First Baptist Church.

Speaking for over an hour during which he told of the avidity with which Africans accepted christianity, Rev. R. E. Schaffer, a former East Liverpool potter, greatly impressed a large audience at the First Baptist church last night.

With Mrs. Schaffer, a former Chicago woman, he and their three children have just arrived here on a year's furlough following six years' service in the dark continent.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schaffer, of Lincoln highway, he was converted at the age of 15. Later, feeling the urge to preach, he was advised by Harry Watkin, superintendent of the Edwin M. Knowles China company, Newell, to attend the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago. This he did, working his way, and later graduating. Both Mr. and Mrs. Watkin were present to hear him last evening.

Because of a cold their two oldest children, Robert and Ruth, were unable to sing as announced. However, their parents sang two hymns in the African dialect and Mrs. Schaffer contributed some numbers on the violin.

The Rev. Mr. Schaffer, among many things, told of a young negro convert during his ministry who, before a tragic end from an accidental gunshot wound while hunting, translated the entire New Testament into the native tongue.

"The natives are wonderfully keen at learning once they get started," he said, "and all are desirous of accepting Christianity."

After a brief visit here they will go to Chicago to visit Mrs. Schaffer's relatives. Returning here they will likely be heard again before returning to their mission station.

Unalloyed belief in the virgin birth of Jesus Christ was unhesitatingly affirmed by the Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church in a sermon on the fundamental doctrines of the church yesterday morning.

That it was not wrong to question the occurance of such an incident in the life of the Nazarene was admitted by him. "Even Mary, His mother viewed with an interrogation mark the statement that such was to occur" he declared."

"Mary," he went on to say, "settled the interrogation in her mind by obeying and experienced in herself the occurance while Joseph by vision was enabled to develop a faith by which he also believed and saw what was later to also come to pass in the life of the Saviour of the world.

"One has the right to disbelief only so long as he has not made a study and investigation of the facts incident to this outstanding occurrance in the life of the Lord and Master" he declared.

He said also that even ministers have the right to disbelieve the doctrine of the virgin birth, "but they have no right to continue in pulpits of churches and denomination which in their stated beliefs and discipline subscribe to this belief."

Reference was made during the service to the meeting this week in the Church of the Master of Cleveland of the Ohio Baptist convention in annual session.

In addition to the Rev. Mr. O'Brien the delegates to the gathering will include Paul Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth Fleming, Mrs. J. Greene, Mrs. J. Bowman, Mrs. Charles Kittridge and Mrs. Charles Brown.

They will go to Cleveland today and remain for four days during the progress of the convention. It will be presided over by the Rev. Joseph Lloyd, of Youngstown, who for twelve years has been the pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of that city, a position which his father before him held for about forty years.

Salvation Army.

Eleven conversions occurred at the Salvation Army citadel on West Third street last night when Major Joseph Hughes spoke on the scriptural affirmation: "So then every one must give an account of himself to God."

Three permanent soldiers were added to the army: Mr. and Mrs. William Kline and Frank Watson of the East End.

Three candidates for field officers were also qualified during the day: Misses Alberta Fay Strauss and Mary Ann Mason of St. Clair avenue and Second street respectively and Earl Galloway of West Church alley. All in September expect to attend the Salvation Army Training college in New York city. In the meantime they will pursue the corps' cadet course here.

First Presbyterian Church.

"Christ must be gotten into the hearts of men in order to make the world Christ-like," asserted the Rev. J. H. Lawther, Ph. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning.

"What a change is needed to make America Christ-like!" he commented. "What changes are demandful in making Christ-like your individual life and mine. Insurmountable though the project appears if we but remain heroic and loyal such a condition can and will be brought about."

"The assimilation of the Christ-life in our lives," he declared, "was the supernatural regeneration of one's personality. For such a transformation," he said, "God had so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believed in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

"You can not become Christ-like without putting Christ first in your lives," he averred. "You can not become great in mind without thinking great thoughts. And there is no lifting power like the words of the Christ."

"For Christ to possess the individual would be," he pointed out," as a mystery in principle. It is necessary to realize it to believe that Christ died for the entire world; for every one in it. Do you really believe that. If and when one does his actions are different than formerly."

He declared five things thinking parents would have their children possess: Education, prosperity, health, ethical justice and spiritual power with God.

"From primitive man there has been much ignorance and superstition," he said. "Even now the majority of people in the world have not been a single day in public or Sunday school. The education of the world is a gigantic undertaking from which we dare not turn back. But education alone will not make us Christ-like. Some of the best educated persons in the world are criminals.

"And by prosperity parents we do not mean mere dollars and cents, but that condition which makes them amenable and susceptible to the best in life and existence."

STOMACH, LIVER AND GALL TROUBLES SOON VANISH

Five Years Systemic Disorders Conquered by Owa-Ton-Na.

Mrs. T. M. Nash

The fame of this fine old Indian Remedy, Owa-Ton-Na, spreads rapidly wherever it has been introduced. Already hundreds right here in East Liverpool tell of the remarkable benefits they have attained through its use. Each day the laboratory representative who is located at the Carnahan Drug Store,113 East Sixth street hears new stories of the good it is doing in kidney, liver, stomach and intestinal disorders, rheumatism, neuritis, nervousness and a general run-down condition of health.

Many of these people have been disappointed in other medicines and remedies tried but find that Owa-Ton-Na acts differently and brings results where other methods failed. Owa-Ton-Na, a original Indian formula, is made of the same ingrediants that it was originally made of by the Red Man. It is now scientifically prepared so that the original ingredients may be intact when they reach your hands in order that you, too, may enjoy the benefits of this successful remedy. Another local resident who has found in Owa-Ton-Na relief after five years of suffering is Mrs. T. M. Nash, Georgetown Road, Beaver, Pa.

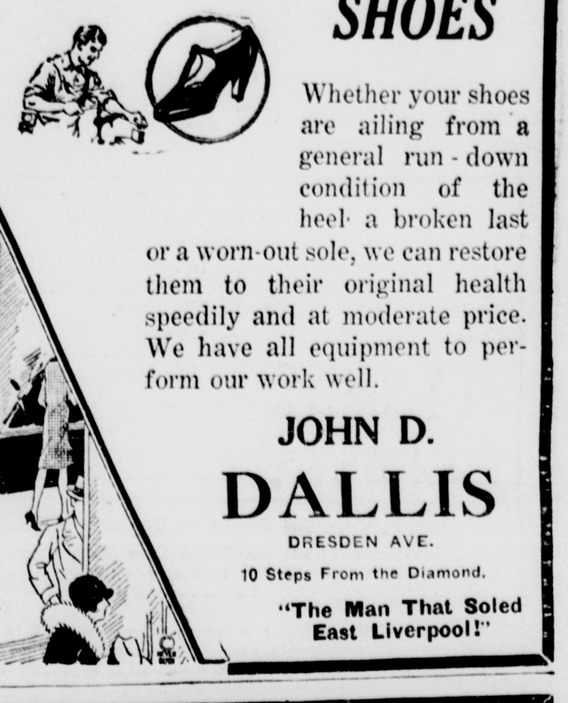

She says: "For the past five years, I have been in a run-down condition. It just seems as though everything had gone wrong, stomach, liver and kidney disorders. I was told I had gall bladder trouble yet nothing that I did seemed to give me any relief. Food fermented and caused gas. Why, at times I had no appetite at all. Headaches and backaches made life miserable. Sometimes I just felt as though I couldn't go on.

"My bowels were always constipated, laxatives and physics just seemed to make me worse. I just got to the point where I didn't know what to do. I heard so much about Owa-Ton-Na that I felt I might as well try it, I had tried so many other things. I want to say that Owa-Ton-Na has done me more good than all the other things I took put together. Even the first bottle showed me I had found the right remedy.

"My bowels started to function normally, my stomach acted better, food digested properly and my appetite came back. Now I can eat anything I want without distress and food certainly tastes good. My back doesn't cause me any more trouble, my kidneys act normally, I can now go to bed and sleep all night without getting up to relieve bladder irritation. Words can hardly express the thanks I feel for Owa-Ton-Na. I wish I could personally tell every sufferer about the benefits I received from this fine old Indian Remedy."

The Owa-Ton-Na which Mrs. Nash praises so highly is the same remedy that is daily being explained to eager health seekers at Carnahans Drug Store. 114 East Sixth street, East Liverpool, Ohio by a special laboratory representative who will be glad to tell you about the merits of this fine old Indian Remedy. You, too, may find Owa-Ton-Na to be just the medicine you have been looking for. A trial is all that Owa-Ton-Na asks and it is certainly worth that to anyone who is suffering. Owa-Ton-Na is also obtainable at Carnahan's East End and Newell, W. Va. Stores.

While this is not Rosalie's day at the stick, she couldn't resist coming out to watch Penelope take off, and to see if she managed to come down again right side up. Under Rosalie's arm you can see one of the new awning striped canvas bags, which may be obtained in many sizes and shapes to suit one's individual fancy. There is also another bag which, while we are on the subject of bags, we may as well describe. It is a small pochette bag of moire or leather. On opening the covers, book fashion, and drawing them completely back, we see a powder puff attached to a small tube running the length of the inside of the bag. At one end of the tube is a small stick of lipstick, while at the opposite end powder can be inserted. The powder sifts through a small hole into the puff itself, and can be applied to the face without touching either the powder or the puff. The puff unscrews from the tube for replacing with refill puffs when desired.

Do you, as some other folks do, look upon spring and housecleaning times as the big drudge period of the year. Do you permit thoughts of house cleaning, papering, painting, etc., to rob you of all the joy which rightfully belongs to you and everyone when the trees begin to bud and the flowers to blossom, and southern zephyrs come slipping through the windows, warm and refreshing, and another era of fresh sunshine and cheeriness is ushered in?

Why not look upon spring as an opportunity to clean out the germs of winter which have managed to hang around as long as possible, to pep up yourself and pep up your house? Build A Home Is Finleys' Tip

The Build-a-Home-First movement was launched to bring reassurance to people who had vague fears about building or buying a home. Most of them have heard of instances where the undertaking had proved too burdensome to some person of their acquaintance, without knowing also that the acquaintance's trouble has been caused by, perhaps, a bad financing plan, building beyond the family means or bad selection of lot or house design.

What Finley Brothers Lumber Co. is trying to expound is the fact that, for every person who has been dissatisfied with a home venture, there are scores who regard such a venture as the turning point toward larger success. We have tried by every means in our power to educate the public on good value in actual examples of beautiful, convenient, modern homes, economically built on good properties by well laid out responsible development organizations. We have contended against whatever savored of extortionate financing and have pointed out that there has been a steady and rapid improvement in homes building values since the war period.

For most people, home ownership is the adventure of a lifetime.

JEWELRY, RADIO AT PRESCOTT'S

Freed-Eiseman Receiver, Cyma Watch, Both "Jewels,"

A radio is like a piece of furniture. Use good judgment in your selection and it will serve you for years. Many have discovered this service in the Freed Eiseman radio, one of the outstanding sets on the market, its value having been proved over the period of years in which it has been on the market. The Freed Eiseman is not something new. It was one of the first. It was built well to begin with and is being constantly improved.

R. F. Prescott, St. Clair avenue jeweler, is agent for the Freed Eiseman people here. He points out that the Freed Eiseman people have been builders of fine radios since broadcasting began—an achievement made possible by public approval.

All the experience gained in the past as well as the very latest improvement in the radio art, are combined in the new 1929 models.

When you want a radio you want an instrument that has embodied in it all the perfected accomplishments of modern radio, plus the exclusive engineering achievements of its builder.

The Freed-Eiseman dealer is a man to be depended upon. He has been chosen because of his proven integrity as a merchant and for his experience which makes for a better understanding of service. He is capable.

His reputation is such that when he sells a Freed-Eiseman radio set it it guaranteed by him as well as by Freed-Eiseman.

At the present time, Prescott has a beautiful console F-9 model with dynamic speaker, on display, and he will be glad to demonstrate at any time.

The Freed-Eiseman is a "jewel" of a set, and it is appropriate that it should be a companion to the many fine examples of the jeweler's art in Prescott's store. For instance, the Cyma watch.

The world famous Cyma watch is recognized by the foremost technical authorities of all lands as being one of the most wonderful examples of timekeeping machinery ever made. In buying a watch the name is all-important, far more important than anything else.

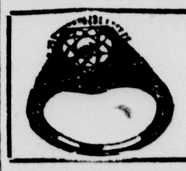

A watch is composed of over 100 parts and requires in manufacturing 1,000 or so different processes. These are 1,000 reasons why you should be sure of the watch you buy.

Back of the Cyma watch is Prescott's own guarantee, as well as that of the manufacturer. It has to make good.

Visitors are Outhit But Make Their Blows Count.

Socking the old Roman beauty when hits meant runs, Jack Orr's Katies turned in their first Inter-City victory Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Chester News, 6 to 3, at Smith Field.

The Katies had previously dropped two games, one to Wellsville and one to Homer Laughlin.

The Katies were outhit Saturday but they slammed their own pitches at opportune moments, Schultz and McConnell contributing timely wallops with runners on the paths.

Don Stoffell made his league debut on the slab for the visitors. Springer dished up the curves for the home nine.

Although Stoffel was found for 10 swats he kept them pretty well scattered with the exception of the ninth inning. His control was all that was needed.

Springer turned in a seven-hit performance but three of the seven blows came with runners on the paths. In addition, the five walks he issued did not aid his chances.

Wyant of Chester and Schultz of the Katies sparkled in defense maneuvers. Wyant's one-handed stab of Kinsey's hard rap and Schultz's pretty play on George Cebula's grass cutter were among the big performances of the day. Wyant carried off batting honors with a double and a triple in four times up.

The Katies' offense, which has been rather weak in games to date, blasted in two runs in the first frame. Witherow drew a walk. He reached second on Coleman's sacrifice and scored on Schultz's single to center. Schultz tallied when Wyant miscued on Bayley's fly.

The visitors rounded the paths again in the third. Witherow led off with a double through short and finished on Schultz's two-base swat to left.

The West Virginians broke the ice in the fifth. Hunselman's smash to O'Brosky was too hot to handle and the veteran backstop reached second on the third baseman's wild heave to first. Springer's timely single chased him home.

Coleman scored another K. T. K. tally in the fifth. He started on his way with a single which sizzled through the slab. Schultz hiked to first on four wide ones and Kinsey slapped out a double to push Coleman to the plate.

The last two K. T. K. runs were registered in the eighth. Springer's error put Kinsey on first. Bayley drew a pass and both finished when McConnell doubled to center.

Les McMath's crew made a bid for the game in the ninth, scoring two runs before the rally was checked. Connors and George Cebula singled in succession, Connors reaching third on Cebula's rap. Wyant drove one at Stoffell. The pitcher nipped off Cebula at second but Connors scored and Wyant was safe at first.

Wyant came in with the final tally of the contest when Hunselman poked out a long double to center.

Tigers Under Bucky Harris Clawing At League Leaders

Young-old Manager Putting New Pep Into Both the Club and the Fans.

Stanley "Bucky" Harris.

THE turnstiles are clicking merrily at Navin Field at Detroit after some lean pickings for the Detroit Tigers. After losing Ty Cobb, the management of George Moriarity didn't at all meet the fancy of the fans, with the result that President Frank J. Navin started looking around for new blood.

As he cast his eagle eye over the baseball horizon ,who should stand out but young-old Bucky Harris, who was persona non grata (in bad) with his boss, Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators. When Frank broached the subject to Clark, the Senators boss almost spoiled the deal by his over-anxiety to part with Harris, having no idea that Bucky would make anything over, to say nothing of a Detroit team.

What a wreck the good old Tigers were when Bucky took the helm! But today they're a mighty strong first division team, playing a fine game of baseball—good enough to trim the Yankees, and drawing more customers than the old field will hold; 100,000 fans saw the Yankee series and 60,000 paid admissions clicked while the Athletics were there three days.

The sudden bid of Detroit is entirely attributed to Harris, who gave the fans so much more than they had expected. The team is playing the best ball since the time when Cobb and Crawford used to bang the pellet around the Navin lot, and that's some years for any ball team to be without a real team.

Navin has made many a smart move, but never one smarter than when he grabbed Bucky Harris out of the bag. Everything's jake out in the Automobile City now and Harris deserves the credit.

Burleigh Grimes Hangs Up Sixth Win, Beating Bruins

Pirates Knock St. Louis Out of First Place and Draw Blood in Cub Series.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The Pirates can't be declared out of the National league scramble as long as Burleigh Grimes is on the job. That was demonstrated yesterday when the veteran spitball twirler beat the Cubs, 4 to 1, for his sixth victory of the campaign. He has yet to lose a decision.

After an indifferent start, the Pirates have been playing the best ball in the league for the past week. The 1927 champions knocked the Cardinals out of first place by trimming them two out of three, and now are out to sweep their three-game series with Chicago, the other leading contender.

A hit by Charley Gelbert, the shortstop who was tried and found wanting and is now being tried again, ..bled the Cardinals to nose out the Reds yesterday in the eleventh, 2 to 1. Johnson and Luque did the throwing.

Perfect pitching, not needed by the Yankees when murderers' row was going full blast, has enabled the champions to win three straight after dropping five in a row. Three New York hurlers have pitched shutout ball in their last twenty-one innings, in which they allowed only five hits. Heimach, who blanked the Red Sox yesterday 3 to 0 in a game held to five innings by rain, yielded only two hits.

Jack Russell also allowed only two hits but they were home runs by Gehrig and Ruth—Lou's ninth and Babe's seventh. It was but a short time later that the delirious joy of the crowd was turned to stark tragedy in the wild rush of the rain-soaked spectators for shelter.

KID GETS BALL SIGNED BY BABE

NEW YORK, May 20.—John Lawrence, twelve years old, his arm battered and cut, his face bruised and swollen, sat in the Yankee club house yesterday afternoon and clinched his teeth to keep the tears back as the doctor bandaged his injuries, suffered in the panic at Yankee stadium.

"I won't cry," he promised, and he didn't.

Finally he was fixed up but he wasn't ready to go. He said:

"I want to look around. I've never been this close to ball players before."

A big fellow, half-dressed, sauntered by.

"Gee, there's 'Babe,'" the boy commented in a half whisper.

The big fellow heard him.

"Hello, sonny," he called and patted the kid's head. "Anything we can do for you?"

The boy hesitated and stammered a bit.

"I'd—gee, I'd like a baseball," he half whispered.

He got it—signed by the Babe and then by every other man on the Yankee club.

"Gee! It was worth getting hurt to get that baseball," he cried as internes carried him out on a stretcher.

The Athletics took their fourth straight from the Senators, 7 to 0, with Rube Walberg on the mound.

The White Sox pounded five Detroit pitchers for a 10 to 3 win, breaking even in the series.

Cleveland won its first victory of the year over the Browns, scoring six runs in the eighth for a 10-to-6 landslide. Five St. Louis pitchers were battered for 29 hits, Fonseca getting four.

Other clubs did not play.

Senators Lose Two and Drop Into Cellar

Columbus Nipped by Hens; Top Positions Unchanged.

Louisville's feat in taking a double-header from Indianapolis yesterday, and Columbus' defeat at the hands of Toledo, today had catapulted Columbus into the cellar position in the American Association race for the little flag at the end of the rainbow.

Top positions in the league remained unchanged, those stronger teams doing what was expected of them, except Indianapolis.

Louisville, which formerly occupied the anchor place, pulled a surprise and drew double fours from the bats, taking both games of a double-header from the Hoosiers, by 4 to 1 and 4 to 2 scores.

The Mudhens took revenge on the Senators for Saturday's defeat, when they downed Nemo Lieboid's men to the tune of 6 to 2.

Kansas City remained in first place by beating Milwaukee in a close contest, which was featured by the lack of hits, the score at the end of the nine innings standing 4 to 2 in favor of the Blues.

Minneapolis strengthened its hold on second and made a noble bid for the first place when they came out of a fray with St. Paul with a 6 to 2 tally. The Millers have won 21 games and lost 8 so far in the race, pushing the leaders, who have taken 19, and lost 7.

St. Paul, though defeated, stayed in third place by virtue of Indianapolis' drubbing at the hands of the Colonels.

Indianapolis is in fourth place and from the bottom the Brewers hold the fifth candle. Toledo is third and from the bottom and Louisville next with Columbus in the cellar.

Belmont Awaiting Larkspur

"It Wasn't Right," Moan Backers of Favorite.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, May 20.—To hear them tell it, there isn't a real good three-year-old race horse in training today, in spite of the fact that the second of the two major stake races, the Kentucky derby, was written into the pages of posterity on Saturday. That event and the Preakness usually prompt the boys to stand about in reverent groups and discuss the two winners in some degree of awe but today some of them were sneering openly at Clyde Van Dusen and Dr. Freeland, respective winners of the derby and Preakness, and the term: "nickel horses," was by no means a conversational rarity.

Personally, I think it is possible that the boys are getting their paper money mixed up with some of their street car tickets. Clyde Van Dusen admittedly is no Zev, no Bubbling Over and no Reigh Count but neither is he a plug who soon is to find his level between the shafts of somebody's hearse. As a matter of fact, we know neither how good nor how bad he may be, for he won the derby so easily that an accurate conception of his worth is not possible.

They say, in one breath, that he beat the cheapest kind of horses and, in the next, that Blue Larkspur is all race horse in spite of the fact that he didn't show it in the derby. They tell you also that those who played Blue Larkspur in the derby will get their money back. All that is necessary, it seems, is to bet on him in the Belmont and back to papa will come the dollars, temporarily estranged through a slight misunderstanding that occurred at Churchill Downs on Saturday.

The idea in this connection is that Blue Larkspur will beat Dr. Freeland in the Belmont and in truth, racing form says that he should. Perhaps they wouldn't be so certain of a Bradley victory if Larkspur had to beat Van Dusen. The latter, being a gelding, isn't eligible for the Belmont.

However he will have his chance to establish the things that, through no fault of his were left unproved on Saturday. This chance will come in the American derby, where all of the good ones in training probably will go to the post. If Van Dusen isn't all "horse," this race will determine the fact, and it will be time then to send in a call for the veterinary.

As it is, all that we know is that Clyde Van Dusen ran well in the mud at Churchill downs and that, if he didn't beat a good colt in Blue Larkspur, then a lot of Kentuckians don't know their horse chestnuts.

IF old Burleigh Grimes can just hold out, the Pirates may get somewhere yet. The first citizen of Minerva registered his sixth victory of the season yesterday and he's lost exactly none.

Some of the other Buc flingers who were to burn up the league this summer, should watch the big boy and see how he does it. But then . . .

It's difficult to see the ball park from the showers.

"Burly" allowed seven hits yesterday and Hornsby got three of them.

We asked Grimes one day what kind of a ball he pitched to Hornsby, who, who know, has acquired some reputation as a hitter.

"Use just the regulation ball, ordinary size, usual number of seams, deliver it in the customary style, hope for the best and keep your eyes open." In other words, Grimes indicated that some of the picthers could fool Hornsby some of the time, but all of them couldn't fool him all the time.

SPEAKING of pitchers, Manager Roy Nicholson of the Wellsville Inter-City league has signed a new flinger by the name of Gunnisack.

With this bird on the slab, Nick hopes to bag quite a number of games.

And while it's a litlte early for batting averages, we might consider the case of the famous Eclipse. The names below made a lot of baseball history for East Liverpool and some of them carried their prowess into the major leagues.

IT seems that the old Eclipse played a total of 39 games during the summer of 1891 and had three stopped by rain before the first half of the fifth inning was played. Of these games, the record says, the Eclipse won 25, lost 12 and played two tie games. The "Red Cross" club and the Allegheny Athletics each forfeited one game to the locals and Wellsburg two, making, in all, 29 victories to the credit of the Eclipse. This club scored 346 runs to 211 by the opposition and made 449 base hits to 299. Their achievements gave them a batting average of .323 and a fielding average of .905.

Fur to Fly As Newell-Chester League Rivals Clash Tonight

McMath Nine Confident Of Second Straight; Dickey's Potters Hope To Even Series.

FUR WILL FLY tonight at Newell's ball orchard when those old rivals of countless inter-city combats, Chester and Homer Laughlin, clash in their second engagement of the present season.

The Chester News nine slipped one over the Newellites a week ago last Saturday in one of the opening day engagements and Manager Les McMath is confident his club will make it two straight over their ancient enemies tonight.

On the other hand, Pilot Joe Dickey of the Potters, confidence strengthened by the snappy performance of the Laughlin nine in trimming the Katies the other night, is certain his gang will even up the series with the up-river contingent.

The Katies, having broken into the win column, feel they have begun to hit their proper stride after taking over the Chester club and expect to make it two in a row when they tangle with Wellsville tomorrow night at the Wellsville diamond. The Katies dropped their first clash with the Nicholson combine. The Wellsville and K. T. K. clubs tangle again on Friday night, this time at Columbian park.

Twin bills are in order during this particular week of the first round schedule. Laughlin will return Chester's call when the West Virginian clubs battle at Smith Field Wednesday night.

Wellsville is heading the race with its single victory. Chester and Laughlin are tied with one victory and one defeat apiece. The Katies are fourth with one win and two losses. The locals are the only club right up to date with its schedule. Chester and Laughlin are short one apece and Wellsville two as a result of postponements.

Two Dead In Riot At Staduim

62 Hurt as Fans Rush Yank Park Exits in Rain.

NEW YORK, May 20—Sixty-two baseball fans, many of them young boys of the freckled-faced, tousled-headed type comprising a large percentage of Babe Ruth's countless galaxy of admirers the nation over, were being treated for injuries today as the result of a wild stampede which followed a sudden cloudburst in the fifth inning of the Yankee-Red Sox game at the Yankee stadium here yesterday.

Two persons, a young girl and a 60-year-old truck-driver, met instant death when crowd, scrambling for exists in a moment of wild panic, knocked them down and crushed them against the flooring of the stadium.

Reports from Lincoln hospital, where the injured were taken, stated today that all those hurt were expected to recover, although many were suffering painfully from fractured ribs and broken arms and legs.

The dead are Miss Eleanor Price, 17, a student at Hunter college here, who had taken her "kid" brother to the game, and Joseph Price. Both met instant death when the surging crowd swept over them in its mad rush to escape the storm.

Some 50,000 persons were gathered in the huge bowl when the game was halted because of rain in the first half of the fifth with the score standing 3 to 0 in favor of the Yankees. Suddenly came a tremendous clap of thunder, followed immediately by a deluge which poured rain in the proverbial bucketsful over the stadium.

Those in the covered stands merely grumbled, but in the right field bleachers, wide open to the skies but popular because of their proximity to Babe Ruth's ballwick, there was a second of pained indecision as the cloudburst came, and then a frenzied rush for the exits.

Miss Price and Carter were in the front of the mob that scrambled over seats and railings in the rush to cover, and bith tripped and fell as the panic-stricken crowd fought to get out of the rain.

Hundreds of feet trampled over the prostrate figures, and the irresistible crush of thousands more from behind threw down dozens more, many of them young boys.

There were only two exits—one leading from the top of the bleachers and one from the bottom. They converge beneath the center of the stands, and lead down a flight of stairs alongside an alleyway thirty five feet long and twelve feet wide.

It was here that the worst trampling occurred. The runway beside the alley is enclosed by heavy wire, but the crush of humanity burst this and the fans went plunging helter-skelter down the steps, across a little areaway separating the bleachers from the grand-stand and into a little wire gate.

The gate went down like cardboard, and a dozen men and boys pitched headlong into a pit ten feet deep immediately in back of the gate, landing in a heap on sacks of sawdust and refuse. Those immediately back of them fought to keep the crowd from being hurled into the excavation.

Patrolman Louis Baer, assigned to the bleachers exits, tried to stem the mad rush by drawing his revolver and threatening to shoot. He too was knocked down, and his revolver kicked out of reach by the trampling feet.

Few persons in the regular grandstand knew that the tragedy had occurred, and it was not until the clang ing of ambulances resounded through the air that the general public sensed that anything was wrong. The injured were rushed to the Lincoln hospital, and examinations showed that scores of them had sustained fractures of the ribs, skulls, arms and legs.

District Attorney McGeehan today launched an investigation into the panic. Particular attention will be paid to whether the rightfield bleachers are equipped with adequate exits.

Forbidden Door

Story of Adventurous Youth, Mystery, Fortune and a Girl.

By Herman Landon

"I was blind—dazzled by your loveliness and hypnotized by your subtle personality. But my eyes opened at last. I— But we needn't go into that." The voice paused. For a little while it seemed as if the only occupants of the room were Mallingham and Julia.

"Mallingham"—the voice hardened again—"you are beneath contempt. You are dishonest, hypocritical, treacherous, and greedy. Above all else, you are greedy. Greed has been the mainspring of your whole rotten life. I shan't waste words on a viper like you. I'll only say this—you are going to get just the sort of punishment you deserve."

Mallingham trembled. The threat, spoken in a low tone and with a little hiss, and coming out of sheer emptiness, was singularly terrifying. His face was ashen and palsied. With an air of false bravado he lighted a fresh cigarette.

"Look at him, Julia. See his hand shake. See how frightened he looks. And what is he afraid of? Of me—an old, broken man. Ha!"

His mocking laugh rasped sharply on the brief silence that ensued.

"For seaven's sake," Mallingham jerked out in shaky accents, "if you have anything more to say, say it and begone!"

"I'm almost through. All that remains is your punishment. Mallingham, you're a greedy and contemptible fool. You've wasted the best years of your life reaching for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Well, you have almost reached it. The pot of gold is here. You could almost put out your hand and touch it. You are so near to it—and yet so very far. That's your punishment—to come within reach of the thing you have hankered after all your life and yet not be able to grasp it. For a man I like you I can't think of a worse punishment."

"You're raving," said Mallingham thickly, his smoldering eyes searching the emptiness out of which the voice was speaking.

"You know I am not. Behind the iron door there is something which could be easily converted into a vast fortune—$20,000,000 perhaps.

"Think of it, Mallingham. That fortune is only fifteen feet from where you are standing this moment. It represents all that you have wasted your life and bartered your soul for. It would be very easy to get hold of it—if you knew how."

Now the voice had a silent, taunting quality. Mallingham's gray, twitching face was a picture or dread and baffled desire.

"What is this thing you are talking about?" he demanded.

A low, mocking laugh was the only response.

"Tell me," said Mallingham hoarsely, "or I'll know you are lying."

"No, you know I am speaking the truth. That's why you are beside yourself with envy and disappointment. You know you are beaten—beaten within a few feet of your goal. This is the bitterest moment in your life. I can see it in your face."

"Show me this thing," Mallingham bawled, "and then I'll believe you."

"You don't need proof. You are convinced already. Just the same, I am demonstrating Old Winthrop's secret to you this very moment. You can't see me, yet you know I am sitting in this chair. You know I am real. You can hear me. You can feel me——"

The chair squeaked a little, Mallingham shank back as footsteps came toward him. He uttered a horrified squeal as a hand brushed his face.

"There! I have proved I am real and human in every respect, haven't I? I am the personification of the secret for which Old Winthrop was offered $20,000,000. Think of it, Mallingham—$20,000,000 almost at your fingertips! And you are never going to touch a penny of it. Tough luck!"

Mallingham's impassioned face and the greedy smolder in his eyes bespoke an agony of frustration.

"Watch me," said the voice.

Julia drew herself up. A look of tormenting expectancy came into Mallingham's stricken face. He stared into the void from which the voice came. And slowly, out of nothingness, there emerged a faint, quivering shimmer. It swelled and took on color. It assumed human shape. Julia sprang to her feet. A groan escaped Mallingham's tight lips. He was witnessing the strangest sight of his life.

Before him stood a man garbed from head to foot in bright green. A green hood covered his face, meeting the soft green collar at his throat. Long green gloves and green shoes covered his hands and feet. He was looking at them with a tauntingly smiling gaze, partly dimmed by ovals of green-colored glass inserted in the hood over the eyes.

And then, while Mallingham clutched the table for support, the man in green jerked the hood from his face. A long, trembling cry broke from Julia's lips.

"Maxwell!"

She fled from the room.

"That's all," said Maxwell Martenet. "You may go, Mallingham."

John Brings News.

With a dour and cautious mien John Breck entered Hannan's little room and set the breakfast tray down on a chair beside the bed.

"Feeling better, I see," he remarked lugubriously.

"I expect to be on top of the world again before long," said Hannan brightly. In spite of all that had happened, he was in a happy mood this morning. Hadn't Viola kissed him last night? And wasn't life a wonderful thing? "How is everybody this morning, John?"

John grunted. "What bothers me ain't how they are, but where?"

"Any more disappearances?"

"Oh, only a candle." Hannan drank his coffee with keen relish. "Best coffee I ever tasted, John. Seen Miss Lane this morning?"

John wagged his long head. "Nope. Not since last night. We had a bit of an argument in the library. Didn't amount to much. She seemed kinda riled."

"What do you mean? Did she look excited?"

"Well, I couldn't say. There was just the one candle burning—the one that's gone from its place this morning. The light being kinda dim, I didn't get a good look at her."

Hannan put his cup down and stared at the caretaker. "John, what in Sam Hill are you driving at? Anything wrong?"

"I wouldn't say, Mr. Hannan. There's just this about it. Miss Lane didn't come to breakfast this morning. That don't mean much, though, for she wasn't the only one that stayed away. The queer part is that she ain't in her room, and as far as I can make out she ain't anywheres else."

John bent over quickly and caught the cup as it fell from Hannan's hand. "Now, Mr. Hannan, no use gettin' het up. Gosh ding it! Now I wish I hadn't told you. Miss Lane's prob'bly all right. Things allus look a whole lot worse than they are. Maybe she'll—— Oh, there's one thing I forgot to tell you. I found the candle."

"Which candle?"

"Why, the one that vamoosed last night from its place on the mantel. I found it in a funny place, too." The caretaker scratched his jaw with a troubled air. "It was layin' on the floor just outside the iron door."

"The iron——!" With a sharp exclamation of dread, Hannan sprang up from the bed and reached for his dressing gown.

"Now, Mr. Hannan, no sense in that," the caretaker remonstrated. With crude gentleness he forced him back down on the bed. "You'd only make things worse, you with your bunged-up shoulder.

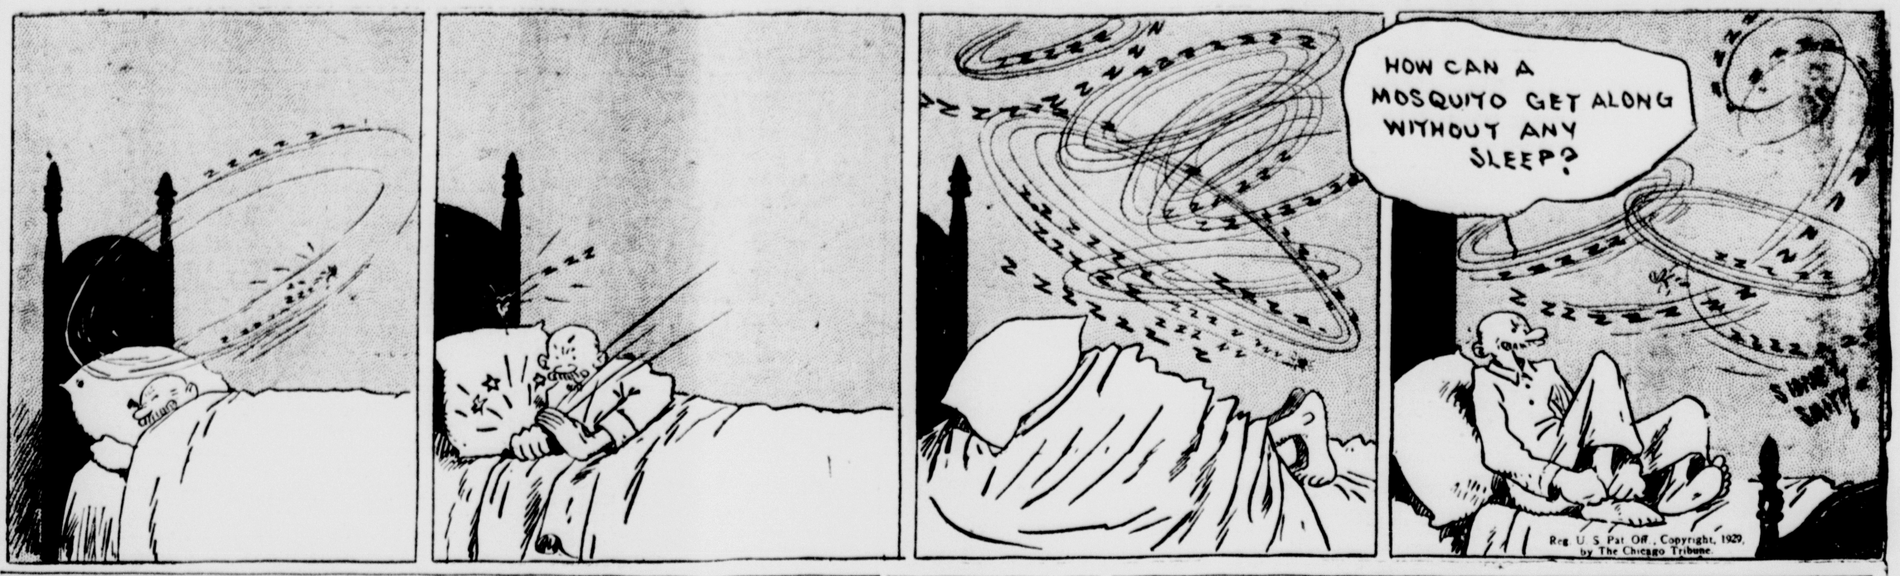

"There ain't nothing you can do—nothing anybody can do. Anyhow, I bet Miss Lane is all right. She strikes me as a young lady who can take care of herself."

"Guess you're right, John." Hannan pretended to realize the futility of trying to do anything. He finished his coffee and toast, then let his head drop to the pillow. A little eternity seemed to pass before John finally took himself off. The moment he was alone, Hannan jumped up and started to dress, the twinges in his shoulder being engulfed in a vaster torment of body and mind. He dropped Viola Lane's pistol into his pocket and opened the door a crack.

WOMAN ACQUITTED ON MURDER COUNT

CANTON, O., May 21. — (INS) — Freed of a first degree murder charge by a verdict of not guilty on the sole grounds of insanity, Mrs. Maeme Guerrieri was to be released from the county jail today after the formality of a hearing before Probate Judge Alva L. Deal.

The 27-year-old mother of five children admitted that she shot and killed the Rev. Joseph Riccardi, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic church, as he stood in the church [illegible] after morning mass on Sunday, March 10.

Mrs. Guerrieri said she was so distraught by the story of mistreatment in a parochial school which her five-year-old daughter, Palmena, had told her.

A jury of six men and six women deliberated three hours and 15 minutes. Judge Charles Krichbaum had charged them that under the evidence a straight verdict of not guilty could not be returned but that if the jurors found that the woman was temporarily insane at the time of the shooting she could be acquitted on those grounds.

Williams and Yancey Prepare For Atlantic Hop In "Green Flash"

Bellanca Monoplane Pilot and Navigator Await Weather Report For Jump to Rome.

TRANS-OCEANIC RACE EXPECTED

Armeno Lotti, Jr., and Pilot Plan to Start Flight to Paris on Same Day.

By Arthur Quinn.
International News Service Special Correspondent.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., May 21.—Delayed but not discouraged by reports of thick weather that blankets the entire North Atlantic, Roger Q. Williams, pilot of the Bellanca monoplane, "Green Flash," and his navigator, Lieut. Lewis Yancey, today made last-minute preparations for their flight to Rome.

Williams said he had hoped for good weather today for an early start, but predicted that the necessary delay would not be for more than 24 hours.

"The minute Dr. James Kimball, meteorologist at New York, flashes us the 'all clear,' we'll be off," declared Williams.

As interest in the projected flight increases, word came today of the possibility of a trans-oceanic race to begin from this famous hopping-off place.

Surprise Passenger Possibility.

Reports received here were to the effect that Armeno Lotti, jr., is coming here from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., with his French plane and pilot, Jean Assollant, to start their flight to Paris simultaneously with Williams and the "Green Flash" crew.

Another possibility in connection with the flight to Rome was that a surprise passenger, representing a group of newspapers, would be taken aboard the "Green Flash" at the last moment.

"—as advertised"

HOW many times you see those words in the course of a day's shopping: "This article for sale—as advertised."

And those two words are as welcome as they are familiar, for they form a bond of confidence between the merchant and yourself. They are his guarantee to you of worth and value.

Here is an article that has been described in your newspaper. Its merits have been told; possibly, too, its price. You know exactly what you will get when you buy it. You know its quality, its utility; you know how it fits into your needs. And when you buy it, you know you are getting not some unproved substitute but the specified article—as represented.

It is easy to understand why that phrase, "as advertised," creates a feeling of confidence. You have learned to depend upon consistently advertised products. You know that the maker has confidence in them else he would not spend money calling your attention to them day after day, and month after month. You know that they have been approved by the most critical of investigators—the buying public. And above all you know from experience that buying goods "as advertised" is the best investment you can make.

It pays to read the Advertisements.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO

To maintain a slender figure, no one can deny the truth of the advice: "REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

A Milestone

Lucky Strike represents a milestone in the progress of cigarette manufacture. The toasting process makes Lucky Strike the brand of distinction, and, in the opinion of 20,679* physicians, is the reason Luckies are less irritating. No other cigarette enjoys this secret heat treatment which removes impurities and irritants, produces a flavor beyond comparison and assures the smoker the maximum of delightful smoking pleasure and comfort.

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET"

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

"—as advertised"

HOW many times you see those words in the course of a day's shopping: "This article for sale—as advertised."

And those two words are as welcome as they are familiar, for they form a bond of confidence between the merchant and yourself. They are his guarantee to you of worth and value.

Here is an article that has been described in your newspaper. Its merits have been told; possibly, too, its price. You know exactly what you will get when you buy it. You know its quality, its utility; you know how it fits into your needs. And when you buy it, you know you are getting not some unproved substitute but the specified article—as represented.

It is easy to understand why that phrase, "as advertised," creates a feeling of confidence. You have learned to depend upon consistently advertised products. You know that the maker has confidence in them else he would not spend money calling your attention to them day after day, and month after month. You know that they have been approved by the most critical of investigators—the buying public. And above all you know from experience that buying goods "as advertised" is the best investment you can make.

It pays to read the Advertisements.

Legion Poppy Day

Next Saturday will be American Legion Poppy day here.

As a means of providing funds for relief work among former service men and their dependents, as well as raising the East Liverpool post's share of the Memorial day observance expenses, Legion auxiliary members and Boy Scouts will sell poppies on the streets.

Private Eddy post, No. 66, Veterans of Foreign Wars, adopted the same plan in a campaign last Saturday, while the Grand Army of the Republic conducted a Flag day sale earlier in the month. The three organizations will join with the Sons of Veterans in paying homage to the soldier and sailor dead on Decoration day.

The Legion deserves the support accorded the Civil and Foreign war men in two previous canvasses, for its cause, too, is worthy.

Gain In Labor Productivity

There has been a mighty gain in the productivity of the American wage-earner during the last ten years. Since the beginning of 1920 the increase has been 53.5 percent as compared with 4.7 per cent during the ten years preceding that date. These figures are given in a report made by Vice President L. P. Alford, of the American Engineering council, detailing the result of a survey made for the committee on recent economic changes created by the economic conference called by the late President Harding. This development, Alford reports, was accomplished by a gain in the physical volume of production and a decrease in unit cost as well as a gain in efficiency in power generating plants.

The report shows the development of a movement for the elimination of waste along three lines—simplification of product, standardization of manufactures and reduction in wastage. Simplification of product is estimated to save more than $600,000,000 annually. The mighty saving resulting from standardization may be appreciated by the showing that it has effected a yearly saving of $750,000,000 in the automobile industry alone, while one plant reported a saving of $250,000 as a result of reduction of wastage.

There was a gain in manufacturing building equipment and machinery in about the same degree as the increase in the use of power. In this connection it is interesting to learn that sixty-four per cent of the manufacturing concerns hold that new equipment must return its cost in savings within a period of three years, and that two-thirds of the sixty-four per cent of plants expect the cost of new equipment to be wiped out within two years.

Alford brings out that there is a very significant trend in American industry to place emphasis on research work, stating that fifty-two per cent of 559 concerns having a commercial rating of $1,000,000 or more carry on such work as a company activity, while seven per cent conduct testing laboratories and twenty-nine per cent of the others support cooperation research work.

Two disclosures of the report which give food for thought to capital and labor alike are that there has been a narrowing of profit margins and a decrease in the number of workers employed in manufacturing; that while the pay of labor has kept pace with the increased productivity of the wage-erner as a result of simplification of product, standardization and reduced wastage, not so many wage-earners as formerly are getting the benefits derived from increased productivity.

The committee appreciates the anxiety of the wage-earner over the possibility that new demands may not offer a field for his employment should improved machinery wipe out that which he has, but that has been common ever since the introduction of machinery into industry. It has proved groundless in the past for the reason that the growing demands of the public have opened new fields to the wage-earner. American labor will increasingly share in the benefits of its productivity and remain the most highly recompensed in the world.

Sad Sophistication

When Amarillo, Tex., told the Chicago Civic Opera company just where to get off, it may have succeeded chiefly in sowing the seeds of discord in the bosoms of many opera-goers.

People who have listened with awe and satisfaction to operas as sung in their midst by visiting companies have cared little what language they were sung in, so long as the general effect was glamorous and pleasing. From now on these listeners may become self-conscious and hypercritical about opera. And then there will be trouble, for certain small details are not always performed in precisely the same way in every community, says one "wise" observer:

"It is not commonly known, perhaps, but when an opera company goes on tour and runs little risk of critics with ears tuned to absolute pitch, the various stars of the cast not infrequently have the big arias transposed down one tone, so that the high C is a B flat, thereby saving their voices a great deal."

As to language, it is said that an average American audience confident that it is hearing an opera sung wholly in French may actually be hearing the tenor parts in Italian, the soprano and baritone parts in Spanish, the basso in Russian, and so on.

Under these conditions, is any opera still "the" opera advertised? Is the effect less thrilling if the choruses are sometimes reduced from 50 singers to 40?

But why bring such things up? It is like telling children there is no Santa Claus, or that the prince in the fairy tale didn't live happily ever after, at all! The best of us may yet regret Amarillo's sophistication.

When the average graduate is 30 he has lost most traces of having gone to college, a college president says. That is to say, when a man is 30 he usually owns a hat.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21.—Sixty-five years after making its most liberal land grant, which gave away an area larger than seven of our smaller states combined, congress was advised this month by a special committee which has worked on the matter for several years, to bring the transaction to a close and get a court decision on what is yet owing under grant. The transaction in question is the land grant made to the Northern Pacific Railroad by act of congress July 2, 1864 and amended in 1870 and subsequently.

The effort to close up, for good and all, this deal which has extended over half a century, was begun five years ago, or 60 years after the original grant. At that time President Coolidge sent a message to congress recommending that the business be finally disposed of. A special committee was appointed, composed of members of both houses, under a resolution adopted June 5, 1924. That committee has now reported, after many and numerous delays, after 94 days devoted to the taking of testimony, which has been published to the extent of 5500 printed pages. Thus, if congress will pass the bill now proposed, and the attorney general will bring the necessary lawsuits, and it is fought out through the supreme court of the United States, and necessary bills are passed in congress to meet the requirements of the court decision, the 65-year episode may in due season be brought to a close.

More than 35 million acres, or about 54,000 square miles of land have passed to the railroad company under the grant. Enormous as this veritable empire seems to be, it was not enough to assure the original success of the railroad enterprise, for the road failed some years after it was built, and went through a receivership. Indeed the original treatment of the Northern Pacific by congress was considered rather stingy, because it did not include all of the advantages extended to the Union Pacific for building the first transcontinental line. The few thousands of acres which remain in a debatable status today are probably worth more in immediate cash than the whole grant was worth when it was made.

The present problem in closing the chapter on the Northern Pacific grant rest in the Forest Reserves and other reservation of public lands which were made by the government at dates since the railroad grant. Many of these reservations conflicted with the grant, and a long series of trades have taken place by which other lands have been allotted the railroad in lieu of those taken up in reserves. The railroad still has substantial claims pending for lieu lands, and the government does not want to give up any more reserved lands. Hence the gist of the final proposal is that the government make a cash settlement with the road, instead of parting with any reserves of land. Such a settlement must be determined by the courts, after a review of all the law and facts involved.

The process of land granting to the railroads in early days was a simple one. The whole west was more or less a wilderness, parts of it unsurveyed. Congress merely allotted to the Northern Pacific alternate sections of land along its proposed right of way from Lake Euperior to Puget Sound. This was the main substance of the grant. It was a promiscuous gift of mountain or valley, desert or fertile soil, forest or sagebrush, if, the granted depended chiefly on the building of the railthe granted depended chiefly on the buildin of the railroad.

Giving away otherwise useless land was not such a reckless act as it may seem, a half century and more later. When the land grant was passed, the Civil War had not ended. Prior to that conflict there had been a long struggl between Northern and Southern states to see what route the Pacific Coast would first be used for a railroad. Congress could never agree on a route, because the slave states insisted on a southern course, while the free states wanted a northern one.

Today there is practically no free land left in the West which has any value in its present state. Reclamation projects are making some of the remaining arid lands useful. Otherwise what is left unclaimed is practically desert or rocky mountain sides, or withdrawn in forest reserves. What was originally given to this one railroad exceeded the combined areas of Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Maryland, and was greater than the area of any one of the 23 smaller states of the union, but it did not actually enrich the railroad company. It served to get the road built, along with funds otherwise raised, but only time and the work of thousands of settlers have brought it to its present value, long after most of it was out of the railroad's ownership. A thousand details of legislation and litigation have developed, which it is now aimed to close up once and for all, to close this remarkable chapter of the winning of the West.

If Rosalie were to remove the quilted jacket she wears here, we should see one of the sleeveless dresses known as 'beach dresses,' which come in solid colors and are made with drap-around detachable skirts. The quilted jackets, which are frequently worn with these 'beach dresses,' may be replaced if desired by small jackets of printed or solid color linen. The favorite shades are rose, blue or apple green. A sharp gust of wind might give us a glimpse of 'shorts' which match the dresses, making them very appropriate for sports.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, May 21.—This ugly story comes from one close to police headquarters and sheds a high light on the danger of casual flirtation in the wicked city. During a three weeks' period headquarters received unofficial whispers of seven mysterious black-jackings.

All seemed to have taken place along a certain strip of Park avenue and every supposed victim maintained stubborn silence. But the police kept on the trail of rumors and discovered that in each instance there was a "pick up" contact in foyer of an upper Fifth avenue hotel.

There followed a taxicab drive from the hotel to a certain address on Park avenue. Witnesses were found who had seen bludgeoned men staggering and bleeding along the street mumbling of robbery. But they waved questioners off and went on their way.

A handsome young detective was selected to loiter about the hotel lobby with an eye peeled for the flirtatious lady. One evening, after a long vigil, he was impressed by a beautiful girl with the proverbial baby stare he had seen several times about the reception room.

She seemed agitated. He approached her, lifted his hat and said he had noted her distress and wondered if he could be of assistance. She was waiting, she explained naively, for an uncle to take her to a theater. Time passed and the uncle did not appear.

The detective asked if he could see her home. She coyly demurred but finally consented and they drove off in a taxi. At a certain corner she said she lived a block away and it would be better to dismiss the cab and walk. Her family might be surprised if she returned with a stranger.

Near her doorway she suddenly stopped and said her shoe was unlaced. The detective gallantly knelt at her feet to fix things. His intuition caused him suddenly to glance up and a black jack was poised over his neck. The lady knew the proper spot for a knockout. And that was her racket.

Five fairish maids have stepped from the murky night club atmosphere to the clear white spotlight of the stage to portray featured or steller roles. The comely crew of successful graduates is composed of Ruby Keeler, Claire Luce, Irene Delroy, Pearl Eaton and Doris Vinton.

Cabaret girls are known in theatrical agencies as "floor troopers." Intimate contact with audiences in jazz parlors gives them a calloused poise that others acquire only with years. Nothing disturbs them. They are deaf to the clatter of dishes and ringside niffies. Too, the cabaret ladies to succeed must be of great natural beauty. They cannot resort to the generous use of Cosmetics so close up.

The manager of one of the white-tiled orange drinkeries on upper Broadway—he also jiggles the spigot—was in a somewhat confidential mood. (Drink servers of every sort take to men). Always, he said dspite $8,000 yearly rent his profits were $12,000 yearly. Ninety per cent of his customers are middle-aged men. Few women without male escorts imbibe at his counter. The big rush is between 12 and 3. Also the latest in fruit drinks is a diluted peach juice, very tart.

Some of the Coffee Pot palaces are refusing to serve those who do not order to the amount of 20 cents. They discovered an army of thrifty stenographers descended at noon time toting their own sandwiches and spending only five cents for a cup of java.

From a post card: "You are one of those writers who thinks it smart to crack at taxi drivers. I suppose at college you were the campus cutup!"

At my business college they didn't have a campus. Nor am I a writer. It is just ambition and go comb your hair. There's writing going on in this room!

Just this very noon I heard a beetle-browed taxi bully shout an unprintable blasphemy at a confused and tottering white-haired man crossing West 72nd street. And I along with a half dozen other supposed men let him get away without yanking him out of the seat for a sock on the jaw. Nor do many of us care for the way cops ignore the outrageous insolence of taxi drivers toward the citizenry.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

We are approaching the season when food poisoning is common. Neglect of proper refrigeration and other means of protecting the food results in contamination which may be serious in its effects.

When ever there is any doubt in your mind about a given food, the best thing to do is to throw it in the garbage pail. If you are unwilling to do this, the very least that can be done is to thoroughly cook the food. Submitting it to a high temperature will destroy any plant or animal life contained within it.

The eating of uncooked meat has caused many a person to suffer from some form of worm infection. The most common of such troubles is infection with the tapeworm.

There are several forms of the tapeworm. One is known as the "pork-measle tapeworm." Another is called the "fat tapeworms." Others are the "broad tapeworm" and "dwarf tapeworm."

There is no need of giving any description of these parasites. They all gain admission to the stomach through the food we eat.

In reciting the varieties I have mentioned I have not told you of all the various forms of these repulsive guests. There are "round worms" and "pin worms." The latter are more commonly found in children, but may occur at any age.

Much has been written about the "hookworm." Infection with this prevails in the southern portions of the United States.

Then we have the "thread worm" and another peculiar infection known as the "trichina spiralis." The latter comes from eating raw pork. This worm is capable of finding its way into the muscles of the body. It is more than a disagreeable disease. It is quite fatal.

No matter what form of worm infection is present, it is very likely to produce the familiar symptoms of "worms." Nausea and vomiting are not uncommon. Diarrhea, anemia, and progressive emaciation are familiar symptoms.

Portions of the worms or of their eggs may be found in the stools. Colicky pains, unusual appetite, grinding of the teeth, and convulsions are met.

In every case of worm infestation the advice of the family physician should be sought. There are very sure methods of getting rid of these parasites. The popular remedies are quite effective, but, in my opinion, no household effort should be resorted to without the advice of the doctor. The treatment is pretty severe, and the physician will make sure that it is a proper time to take it.

I do not wish to end this article without saying that not every child who grinds the teeth is necessarily the victim of worms. Anything that excites the nervous system may have this as one of the symptoms. Eating the wrong food or eating too much just before going to bed, may have grinding the teeth as one of the symptoms of indigestion.

If there is any doubt in your mind about the matter talk with your physician. Let him decide whether or not you or your child have worms, and what to do to be relieved.

Answers To Health Queries.

I. E. G. Q. — What do you think of the raw food diet? Can a person of 54 years of age properly subsist on such a diet? Will the fact that the patient has heretofore lived on cooked foods make any difference in this case? Has this kind of diet proven very successful?

A. — Raw grated vegetables are considered very nutritious, yes, but a more balanced diet would be better under the circumstances. There are cases where such a diet is of advantage. Your doctor should be the judge.

Y. A. C. Q. — Do diseased tonsils tends to make a person nervous?

A.—Yes.

Thank You. Q.—Is there a cure for cancer?

A. — Early and well applied treatment holds bright prospect of cure.

Spanish-American Solidarity.

Last Thursday the Ibero-American exposition at Seville was officially opened by King Alphonso XIII of Spain. The exposition is unique among such affairs in that it is confined to the nations of Spanish or Portuguese language, with the exception of the United States. In the abstract it symbolizes the close relations existing among the nations of Spanish tradition, and also the close relations of the Spanish world with the United States.

No happier place could be found for such an international exposition, for all the romance and luster of old Spain are concentrated in this beautiful old city of Andalusia on the banks of the Guadalquivir. For the exposition, which is to continue through the summer and fall, the Spanish government has created parks and boulevards, palaces and promenades, profuse with the semi-tropical luxury of vegetation that characterizes the south of Spain.

Not to be outdone, the United States has erected three buildings, one of which is to be a permanent structure of beauty and eventually the home of the American consulate at Seville. The exposition should do much to cement the relations of all of Spanish tongue among themselves, and with the United States, and a visit to Seville will repay any Americans who are so fortunate as to be able to go. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Conscription For War.

If we must think about the possibility of another war, the administrative measure authorizing the president to conscript the man power of the nation in the emergency seems sensible enough. To have such a law on the books might save time when time was extremely valuable. The conduct of this nation in the last war crisis was admirable, for all the partisan criticisms. The tremendous labor of organization involved was performed promptly and efficiently, despite our unpreparedness in almost everything but spirit and raw materials, and we gained all our objectives with remarkable dispatch. Still, we suppose things might have gone somewhat more smoothly if a conscription law had been in existence and our people had been used to the idea.

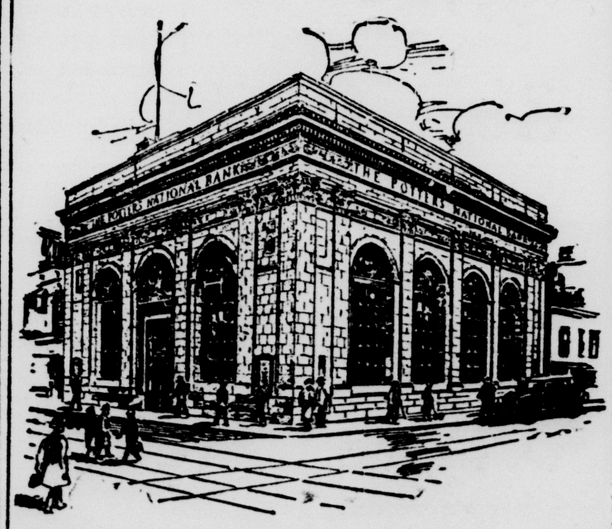

America never could have made her wonderful record in the World war if the reliance had been placed on volunteers. Not enough men would have volunteered for a war 3,000 miles away. In a great future war, except to repel actual invasion, conscription of man power undoubtedly would be necessary, and if the machinery were already set up it would be an advantage. Probably the conscription of wealth also would be necessary, and it might be well to set up the machinery for that also. The more ruinous and devastating another great war is made to appear in the contemplation, the more likely we are to have sense enough to avoid the terrible calamity. But what a curious fact it is that a proposal to conscript wealth is regarded as more radical than a proposal to conscript man power, as if the nation's material wealth were of more importance to it than the life and health of its young manhood! —Ohio State Journal.

NOTED CAST IN STATE PICTURE

With what is probably the largest cast, in point of names, assembled in a picture in many months, and with a story that is astoundingly different from anything the screen has seen heretofore, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's drama based on the famous Thornton Wilder novel, filmed with talking sequences, is now amazing crowds at the State theater.

The novel, a sensation, is closely followed in the story, and impressionistic effects aid in carrying out its atmosphere. The thrilling wreck of the bridge, majestic cathedral scenes and vivid human touches were skilfully woven together by Charles Brabin, the director. Lily Damita, as the fiery dancer, Ernest Torrence as Uncle Pio, Raquel Torres as Pepita the convent girl, Don Alvardo and Duncan Rinaldo as the brothers Esteban and Manuel, all have outstanding roles, as have Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall, Emily Fitzroy, Mikhail Vavitch, Paul Ellis, Jane Winton and others of note.

The impressionistic settings and lightings by Cedric Gibbons, and the clever handling of the script by Alice D. G. Miller are important factors in the big production.

STUART STAR IN 'GIRLS GONE WILD'

Sheer persistency and refusal to take "no" for an answer won Nick Stuart, Fox Films player, co-featured with Sue Carol in "Girls Gone Wild," his first job in a studio. It is now showing at the Ceramic theater.

"I was casting director when Nick, just a bright eyed young boy, made his first appearance on the Fox lot," Lewis Seiler, director, said. "He was so nervy and persistent I finally gave him an extra job. When that ran out, he started pestering me again until I hired him as my office boy."

After several years running errands and acting as general flunkey about the studio, Nick finally got a chance to act in "Cradle Snatchers."

From then on Nick progressed rapidly until now he is the male half of the new Fox Film "team" of Carol and Stuart.

"It's just like old times for me to be bossing Nick around again," Seiler said. "One good thing about him, though, he obeys instructions to the letter, a quality I impressed on him when I gave him his first movie job."

TWO FUNSTERS IN "DESERT SONG"

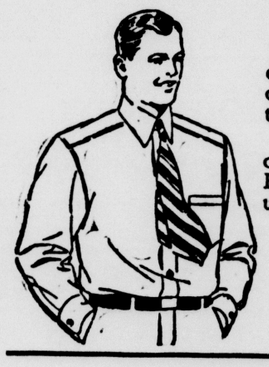

Quite the most delightful comedy scenes in the history of the talking picture take place between Louise Fazenda and Johnny Arthur, the two funsters in the all-star cast in "The Desert Song," the Warner Brothers Vitaphone production which has made screen history as the first operetta to be transferred to films in its entirety, and which may be seen on the screen of the American theater, all week.

The fair Louise, transformed into a ravishing blonde by means of a golden wig, plays the part of Susan, and Arthur is Benjamin Kidd, an eccentric newspaper correspondent who is captured by a marauding Riff band under the leadership of the mysterious Red Shadow, and who is reduced to abject terror before he is finally released as harmless. Subsequently Susan and Bennie wander for two days over the desert mounted on a procrastinating donkey which is only induced to move in a forward direction by a wisp of hay suspended a few inches in front of his nose.

Other prominent parts in "The Desert Song" are played by John Boles, Carlotta King, Myrna Loy, John Miljan, Marie Wells, Jack Pratt Edward Martindel Robert E. Guzman, Otto Hoffman and others, in addition to a magnificent chorus of one hundred voices—a veritable triumph for the Vitaphone. Roy Del Ruth directed, and this enormously successful musical play was adapted for the screen by Harvey H. Gates.

SIMPLICITY WATCHWORD HERE

Youthfulness is the predominating feature of these two frocks. On the left is a dinner frock that is simplicity itself. The shoulder collar is embroidered with crystal beads and edged with eggshell taffeta. The circular skirt that falls below the ankles terminates in a wide band of taffeta in the same shade. A peasant motif is introduced in the navy blue crepe frock on the right, in the voluminous sleeves. The gay bold patterns combined in this print are red, green, blue and yellow, offering very interesting possibilities.

Myrna Loy Tells How To Have Lovely Skin

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Thirty-nine movie directors say that a girl must have exquisite skin if she is to touch the heart. As Howard Bretherton, director for Warner Brothers, forcefully expresses it: "The most appealing charm of all is a lovely smooth skin. And the perfection we call 'studio skin' is the outstanding factor in screen success today."

Myrna Loy, Warner Brothers' beautiful star, finds Lux Toilet Soap splendid for the smooth skin a screen star must have. "This white, daintily fragrant soap leaves my skin so beautifully smooth!" she says.

Nine out of every ten screen stars are enthusiastic about Lux Toilet Soap. And all the great film studios, following their stars' example, have made it the official soap for dressing rooms.

BOMBER PLANE IS READY FOR NON-STOP JUMP

Odasmoon Will Attempt Dayton-New York Round Trip.

REFUEL IN AIR

Pilot Will Bomb Gotham With Brilliant Flares.

DAYTON, O., May 21.—(INS)—With Lieutenant Odasmoon, of "Question Mark" fame at the controls, the Keystone bomber, LB-7, is scheduled to hop off on a round-trip non-stop flight to New York between noon and 2 o'clock this afternoon.

It will make the trip by way of Bolling field, Washington, where it will be refueled in midair by the same method practically demonstrated by the recent record-breaking flight of the "Question Mark."

The huge bomber is expected to reach New York early tonight. Moon will "bomb" the battery there with brilliant flares, soar over the city and then start the return flight, being refueled again at Bolling field.

The flight is one of the features of the 11-day mock war now being conducted in Ohio by the U. S. army.

A radio plane will escort the "ship of the sky" and the latter's progress will be broadcast over the NBC network.

With Moon, will be Lieut. Eugene L. Eubanks, assistant pilot; Bradley Jones, navigator; Lieut. Paul Richter, refueler, and Charles T. Skow, radio officer.

Increase Engineers' Pay.

Ordinance increasing the salaries of employes of the city engineer's staff was passed on three readings. Salaries of the field assistants are increased to 56 1-4 cents an hour; junior engineers to 75 cents an hour; assistant engineer to 90 cents an hour and chief assistant engineer to 90 cents an hour.

A communication was received from the health board urging construction of sanitary sewers in Oakland and Klondike and also in Ray street and in the run paralleling St. Clair avenue between Young's alley and Springdale street. The communication was referred to the streets and ordinance committee.

Upon recommendation of the planning commission, the Orchard park and Martin plats near St. Clair avenue in the north section of the city, were accepted. By a vote of five to two, Councilmen Frost and Hughes dissenting, the Baxter plat was referred to the city planners with instructions that alleys be provided between lots.

A petition from Fawcett street property owners between Bradshaw avenue and Blakely street, urging the grading and paving of that street, was referred to the ordinance committee. Another petition for sewer improvement in Edwards avenue and Denver street, was referred back to the sponsors for additional signatures.

Bond Ordinances Adopted.

Two ordinances calling for the issuance of $36,886.89 bonds in the anticipation of the collection of special assessments for street and sewer improvements were passed on three readings under suspension of the rules. There improvements include St. Clair avenue, Spring Grove avenue and Orchard Grove avenue and sewer jobs in Stewart street, Etna alley, Garfield an' Fairview street.

Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore was instructed to advertise for bids for the purchase of 250 tons of cast iron pipe and fittings, coal and other supplies for the water works department in a resolution passed on three readings. Another resolution, directing him to purchase private property from Mrs. Helen Wheeler to provide a street into Jethro from West Eighth street, at a cost not to exceed $200, was also approved. Ordinance appropriating this money was also passed.

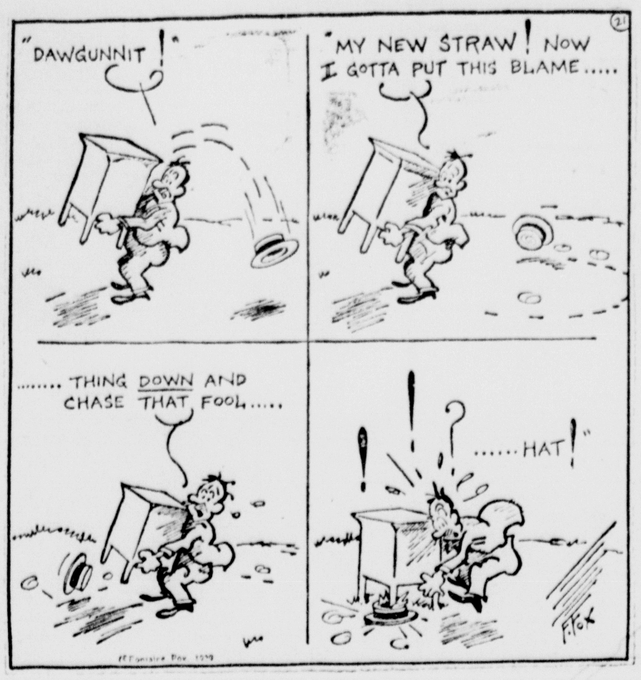

Smith Street Action Taken.

Solicitor Hoover was instructed to bring in legislation, giving Charles McNicol and The Cain Machine company permission to grade and surface East Seventh street, formerly Smith street, from Green Lane to Lincoln avenue, with concrete. Lindell opposed the motion, expressing the opinion that the improvement should also include that part of the street from Dresden avenue to Green lane.

The solicitor was also instructed to prepare an ordinance fixing a fine for operating an automobile while intoxicated, conforming with the state law. Another proposed ordinance requiring gravel trucks to carry side boards to prevent gravel from falling to the streets was also ordered drafted.

An adjourned meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight to consider legislation for the issuance of bonds for street improvements and also to go over plans which have been submitted by architects for the proposed new [illegible] station.

Fool Hat Was Right!

MAYOR TO NAME COUNCIL CHIEF

Solicitor Says Executive Has Right to Act.

Appointment of a successor to serve the unexpired term of the late Council-President Charles E. Hayes, who died last Friday afternoon, "rests solely" with Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, Solicitor Frank Hoover ruled today.

Section 4274 of the general code provides that the president pro-tem of council shall become president should the president of council succeed the mayor. This section, however, according to Hoover, does not apply to the present situation.

Section 4252 provides that the presidency place shall be filled by appointment by the mayor unless otherwise provided for, the solicitor held. Inasmuch as not other provision is made for the filling of the office the appointment evolves upon the chief executive.

The attorney-general, Hoover said, ruled in 1914 and again in 1915 and in 1916 that the mayor has the appointive power.

Hoover said that two members of council had suggested that he communicate with the attorney general, asking for a ruling, but in view of the three opinions by attorney generals he feels that the request would be futile.

Mayor Benedum said that the appointment would not be made until the latter part of the week.

Bobbed Hair May Kill His Art.

C. Bourchoff, the Russian aritst who has received a certain distinction for his pictures in human hair, fears that the bobbed hair fashion may kill his art. He needs long strands for his work, and the supply of these is becoming shorter and shorter. At first glance Bourchoff's pictures are said to be indistinguishable from oil paintings He blends the various shades of hair on his palette as an oil painter mixes his colors. His canvas is a piece of silk or linen cloth, and his brush a fine knitting needle. His method of weaving the hair into the cloths, he says, is similar to that used in making the famous Gobelin tapestries. Bourcheff started producing his pictures at 10 years of age when apprenticed to a hairdresser, and while a war prisoner in Germany he spent his leisure in practice.

Trains in England carrying express exclusively now make non-stop runs of 140 miles at almost passenger-service speed.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

By W. S. Cousins,
(I. N. S. Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, May 21.—Most sections of the market rallied feebly in the first hour today and tried to shake off the effects of yesterday's sledge-hammer bombs, delivered with telling effect by the big bears and professionals near the close of the market.

The rails pointed the way to higher prices, some of the leaders gaining 1 to 4½ points at the opening and picking up a point more in fairly active trading. But the "sweeping victory" for the railroads in the O'Fallon railroad decision was not as sweeping, a stock market standpoint, as appeared on the surface and the roads are still under the necessity of proving their individual cases if they are to receive consideration for higher freight rates. There is talk in Washington of revising the transportation act in accordance with the commerce commission's rulings, but this is a matter in the long distance future.

Atcheson, New York Central, Erie, Western Maryland and a few other well-known rails sold up to 1 to 4½ points, but trading in the rails was in very small volume. Packard and General Motors made the best showing in the motor stock, but Chrysler was again under pressure and slipped back to a new low at 77. This compares with the February high at 135 and the December price of 142.

Battalion Chief Michael Graham, of the fire department, who has been ill at his home from effects of the gas, told Coroner Pearse he saw cigaret stubs in the basement room where the X-ray film was stored. How to Lose Two Dozen Pounds of Fat

At The Same Time Gain in Physical Vigor and Youthfulness and Swiftly Possess a Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes That Sparkle With Glorious Health.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are tuned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from Carnahan Drug Co. or any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.—Adv.

CAPONE BEGINS PRISON TERM

Police on Look-out for "Scarface Al's" Companions.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—(INS)—Behind the grey stone walls of the Philadelphia county prison in the Holmesburg suburb, "Scarface Al" Capone, erstwhile king of Chicago's beer racket, rested in solitary confinement of quarantine today.

Capone and his former bodyguard, Frank Rio, alias Cline, will have to remain in quarantine for 10 days while undergoing a thorough medical examination both incidentally will receive free haircuts but trimmed according to the prison's style.

Meanwhile police watched all arriving trains from Chicago for some of Al's gangster playmates.

Chicago attorneys for Capone also were reported due here within the next few days to make an effort to free the imprisoned gang leader from the sentence of one year in jail he received when he pleaded guilty to carrying concealed deadly weapons last Friday. Their efforts are doomed to failure, attorneys here say, as both prisoners pleaded guilty.

Rumors still persisted today that Capone was "framed" or double-crossed by some of his supposed friends. The latest version alleged Capone attempted to put over a liquor deal here, but supplied two tank cars of water instead of the pure alcohol ordered.

SO WRETCHED SHE PITIED HERSELF

Found the Way to Health in World's Tonic

"I got to pitying myself, I was so wretched six months ago," declared Mrs. A. Stefanovitch, who lives at Ambridge, Pa. My troubles started with a cold I caught about a year ago. It hung on for several weeks, and I coughed and spit a great deal. This all seemed to heal up, but it was followed by stomach trouble. Food did not do me any good. I got thin, and my skin took on a sallow color instead of the rosy tint that I had been so proud of. My eyes seemed so tired I did not enjoy reading, and at times I was dizzy, while my nerves got on edge so that I slept poorly. Nothing I tried seemed to relieve me. A repulsive rash broke out on my forehead, and I became so unattractive that I sincerely began to pity myself. One day in a drug store I heard a man tell the druggist how he had been relieved of stomach trouble by the use of World's Tonic. This conversation stuck in my mind, and a few days later I got this medicine for myself.

"You would hardly believe how quickly it benefited me. It was not two weeks until my appearance changed. The rash dried up, and my eyes grew better at once. In a few days my appetite returned. A week later my skin began to clear up and the sallowness disappeared. One night I slept clear through without awakening. I felt so much better the next morning that I did a big day's work—the first in many months. Now I have very little trouble of any kind. I look now as I used to, and I know I have found the way to perfect health through this wonderful World's Tonic. Since I have been so much helped several of my friends have overcome their prejudices and are taking this great medicine. So far every one of them says it has helped them. I'm for World's Tonic all the time."

Suffering men and women can get World's Tonic at Carnahan's, also C. M. Brannan's at Wellsville, or any

Gained 7 Pounds On "Orange Root"—Local Man Now Picture of Health

Mr. J. E. Armstrong Was in a Badly Rundown Condition—Was Extremely Under Weight, Devoid of Strength and Had No Ambition at All — Says Since Taking 3 Bottles of ORANGE ROOT Gained 7 Pounds, and Never Felt Better in His Life.

Mr. J. E. Armstrong, of 1040 Chestnut street, East Liverpool, Ohio, employed for the past 6 years by the Golden Star Dairy, is probably the best known man in East Liverpool and numbers his friends by the thousands. Mr. Armstrong considers it a duty and pleasure to endorse ORANGE ROOT Iron & Celery Compound for it certainly built up his weakened run-down system and restored him to glorious health when he was just about to give up hope of ever being strong and well again. This well-known and highly esteemed citizen says: "For several years I have been in a very badly rundown condition. My whole system seemed to be weakened, as I had no pep or ambition at all. I felt tired and exhausted all day long. I was losing weight rapidly and was thinner than a rail. Friends began telling me how badly I looked, and believe me, I surely felt that way. No matter how many tonics I took, I failed to gain any strength. I had no appetite to speak of. Life seemed a drag to me for no one can work well feeling all-in and tired all the time. Reading about this ORANGE ROOT in the local papers, I decided that here was a tonic that would do me some good, so I bought 3 bottles of it and a box of the golden nuggets and started the treatment. Laughlin Evens Series With Chester In Battle Of Home Runs

Marshall Unloads Bases; Ranaldi Makes Circuit

Digman Victor in First Slab Appearance of Present Campaign; Potters Bunch Four Bingles With Error to Win.

HOME run clout by Young Pete Marshall, Chester second sacker, with three on base in the opening frame, one of the biggest thrills of baseball, and another circuit smash by Tony Ranaldi who drove in one run ahead of him were wasted on a comparatively small crowd last night at Newell as Homer Laughlin came from behind to lick the Chester News nine, 7 to 4, and even the series to date.

Marshall's wallop came in the inaugural frame with two gone and the four-run total looked good enough to win until the fourth when the Potters launched an offensive that netted five runs, aided by a miscue at second.

The contest was staged in a slight sprinkling of rain.

It marked the first mound appearance of Digman, Joe Dickey's "old reliable," this season and while "Diggie" permitted six hits in the five frames in which the visitors batted, he allowed no more than one blow in each inning, save the first.

Johnson, a youngster, started and finished for Chester. Three solid clouts was all he gave the home nine until the fourth when four were bunched with a damaging error to turn the tide of battle.

It looked like curtains for the Laughlin squad and a bad start for Digman in the first frame after the visitors had streamed around the bases.

Parsons, leading off, drew a walk but Mellott forced him at second, Ranaldi to Finley. Pete Cebula singled through short. And Campbell ogled a walk out of Digman to fill the sacks. McKown fanned. Then young Marshall caught a low one on the end of his bat and the ball went sizzling down the right field line.

Four Cross Plate.

Right fielder Bubin made a desperate try to stop the drive but the ball hugged the rightfield foul line pretty closely until it got past the gardener and it kept going to the automobiles at the edge of the field as the "four horsemen" rode around the paths. Springer struck out to end the inning.

The 4-0 score stood until the third when Laughlin cut the Chester lead in half. In the second inning Johnson retired the side virtually by his own efforts. He tossed out Miller and Pumphrey on successive ground balls and then fanned Baker.

A double to center by Mosser, followed by Ranaldi's home run drive to deep center, gave Laughlin two counters in the third. Ranaldi's wallop was the genuine thing, the ball clearing the heads of the outfielders.

The Newell Potters sewed up the game in the fourth. Bubin flew out to middle to start it but Miller got on with a safe rap through short. Pumphrey hit into what looked like a good double killing for the Chester club but when the smoke rolled away all hands were safe and the tying run on the bags. Pete Cebula fielded Pumphrey's rap cleanly and assisted to Marshall at second. Marshall stepped around the bag and dropped the ball. Lefty Baker got a walk out of Johnson and the sacks were jammed. Chap Finley singled to middle, Miller and Pumphrey scoring. Baker hesitated momentarily at third and Finley, counting on a throw to the plate, started for second. He got down about half way and started back. In the resulting orgy of ball throwing, the apple got loose, Finley scampered safely back to first and Baker ambled over the plate.

Potters Bat Around.

Mosser was retired on a foul over third base which Campbell grabbed.

Finley stole second and scored on Digman's two-base clout to middle, Digman finishing on Ranaldi's single to left. Gregory fanned to end it, the club batting around completely.

Chester got two men on in the fourth when Parson was nudged in the shoulder blade with a pitched ball and Springer singled, but nothing came of it, except a pain in the neck for "Pars."

McKown cracked out a three-bagger in the fifth but he perished at the hot corner.

All Outdoors

By J. W. Stuber

COLUMBUS, O., May 11.—Muskies in Ohio? Well I guess yes! The musky of Ohio drainage is one of the most beautiful of all the fighting tiger-fish; of the musky family. These battling old warriors and tackle smashers, lurk in streams not far from the Roosevelt Game Preserve.

They are there. I have seen them. I journeyed down that way a few days ago to satisfy myself that Southern Ohio fisherman were not having pipe dreams, or that their musky stories were not the result of whoopie juice from the timbered hills of the lower Scioto. I have known there were muskies in the Welhonding because Ben C. Robinson of Newcomerstown, well-known sportsman and outdoor writer said so. I have seen them at Eagles Port, Stockport and Lukes Chute below Zanesville in the Muskingum and have caught them at Ellis above Zanesville in the Muskingum. But I did not believe they were to be found elsewhere in Ohio.

Creeping up to the bank of a little stream, not far from the game preserve, I peeped over the bush and scanned the water. The sun was just right and it was the time of day for a musky to be lying close to the top waiting for some unwary mouse, muskrat, duck, frog or minnow to come his way. I had been fishing for muskies most of the day, but without rise. Muskies are often found at a bend in the river, especially if brush has collected or if there is an overhanging cliff. Here was a sharp turn in the stream, drift had collected against a log that lay half submerged.

My eyes finally rested on what looked like a sunken limb. Did I see it move just a little bit? Yes, I did. Crawling on my hands and knees I worked my way to the trunk of a tree around the bend and just opposite the drift, keeping out of sight meanwhile. I raised up slowly and froze into position, peering through some bushes. The something that looked like a limb was still there. Did I see it settle lower in the water or were my eyes misty and blurred? I rubbed my eyes and looked again, and saw the something slowly rise towards the surface and lie still. Then I made out a black spot that must be an eye. Then the something moved sidewise just the faintest bit. I edged into a better position and then I observed a real honest-to-gosh muskey about three feet long. There he lay in the blue-green water waiting for something to come in reach or else just sunning himself. There was no chance to cross the stream to get behind him. I raised up slowly to work my way to a place where I could make a cast and the sly old tiger slowly settled out of sight at the first movement I made with the rod. I made a dozen casts but he would not strike. Not that day. Some other day perhaps but one thing I know—I know he is there. There are more muskies than you would believe in Southern Ohio waters.

The thing that then came to my mind was the idea of asking the state fish and game division to purchase 100,000 small musky fry and either begin planting them in these streams or else in nursery ponds where they can be reared to size and then released. Muskies can be bought from New York hatcheries I understand. Wherever muskies thrive the state can surely carry on extensive work of restocking and help to provide better fishing for her fishermen who contribute more than $150,000 in fishing license money each year.

Muskies will strike on plugs or spinners. I like the "Pal-O-Mine," the "O'Boy,' 'the "Surprise," or the big Pfluger spoons. The "Musk-Oreon" or "Flash-Oreon" are good. The "Husky Muskie" or "Husky Pikie" are killers. Any of the new mouse baits are excellent for muskies. I believe they would hit the new-jointed minnow "Tantalizer." These names may be Greek to anyone else, but they specify a type to the plug fisherman and belong to his vocabulary. You won't go wrong on any of the above. Use at least an 18-pound test line.

Major Races Now Give Hint Of What's Due

Leaders, Says Walsh, May Finish as They Are.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, May 21. — Skim the one-two-three clubs off the major league bottle this morning, mix thoroughly with one part intuition and two parts common sense, leave in a cool, dry place and let stand for four months. It can afford to stand for four months. As a matter of fact, it probably will. The major league race will not end until October but, either by chance or design, the order of the three money places has just about been achieved today.

One month of baseball in the National league has all but convinced die-hard New York that the fight lies between the Cubs and the Cardinals, with the Pirates an alternate choice. The latter are good but better ball clubs than Pittsburgh have lost pennants and thought nothing of it. The Giants might even get up in time to break into the first three but they are no pennant winner, a fact which even John J. McGraw is beginning to suspect. It looks as though they left their fight in the gymnasium.

The Philadelphia Athletics, the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns are running the pace in the American league in that order today. It might very well be the order of the finish in October. Some club is going to beat the Yankees out of their fourth straight pennant and Philadelphia looks the part at this juncture.

The Athletics, taking matters pretty much in stride, have hung on like a bad cold through two Yankee winning streaks and now are riding the pace, two games in front. It was inability to stay with the Yankees' early speed that lost the Athletics the pennant in 1927 and 1928. They aren't staying now; they are running ahead. Some aver that their hitting won't last through August and September, but these are a couple of bridges that can be crossed in the order of their appearance.

The Browns aren't a hot choice now after losing successive series to the Athletics and Yankees in the west. This, of course, is more or less snap judgment, snap without the letter "n." The Browns are only 2 1-2 games out of the lead and a young club like that is liable to come along when the sun-baked fields of August and September begin to bear down on elderly legs.

There is one pennant possibility not yet mentioned, the Detroit Tigers. They are a hot tip all through the middle west, where some even go so far as to say that they will win the pennant. And, in truth, they have the best pitcher in the league in Uhle and enough hitting for two ball clubs. But no outfit ever won a pennant without a major league shortstop and it is my hunch that Detroit is not due to upset precedent now. This entry, however, will go a lot of places and do a lot of interesting things before they pay the winners off in the fall.

COLONELS HOP AHEAD NOTCH

Top standings in the American association pennant race were unchanged by yesterday's games and Louisville pulled itself up into sixth place by again defeating Indianapolis.

Kansas City shut out the Milwaukee Brewers in what might be termed a sluggish game by a 3 to 0 score, and thereby retained first place.

It would not be safe to bet a plugged nickel on their chances of staying there, however, as Minneapolis is only .008 per cent behind them, and the Twin City boys are goin' strong. This latter was demonstrated to the satisfaction of nearly everyone when they took an unexciting game from St. Paul by a 5 to 3 tally. St. Paul, even though defeated, remains in third place.

Indianapolis came out on the small end of a fray with Louisville, which ended in the Colonels' victory by a 6 to 3 score. The 1928 champs remain in fourth place.

Milwaukee's nine is pushing the Hoosiers close and only a matter of some .020 per cent keeps the former team in the fifth driving seat.

The Louisvilleites, in again taking the measure of the Indians, pulled themselves up sixth place. Toledo occupies the seventh berth, and Columbus—it's your turn to figure now.

14 In Row Haines' Record

Finished 1928 With Nine; Wins Five This Year.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Jess Haines, leather-faced hurler who won 24 games for the Cardinals in 1927 and 20 last year, is off to a running start in his attempt to hang up 25 wins for the champions this season. The 35-year-old knuckle ball artist recorded his fifth straight triumph of the current campaign in setting down Cincinnati yesterday, 5 to 1. His opponent, Red Lucas, who beat the Cards regularly last season, had won four straight.

Big Jess finished the 1928 season with nine consecutive victories, and so yesterday's performance ran his string up to fourteen. His setback at the hands of the Yankees in the third game of the last world series is the only blot on his record during this streak.

Guy Bush, unbeaten this season, registered his fourth victory of the year in pitching the Cubs to a 6 to 1 win over Pittsburgh. Steve Swetonic, a rookie, gave Bush a great battle until the Bruins jumped on him for four runs in the eighth. Stephenson's triple with the bases loaded broke up the party.

Ed Rommell, a knuckle ball twirler like Haines, also has a record of four wins and no losses. He held the Red Sox to six hits yesterday as the Athletics won their fifth in a row, 5 to 1, and increased their lead over the Yankees to two full games. The Yanks dropped an exhibition game to New Haven, 3 to 2.

Carl Hubbell, who hasn't been the same man since pitching a no-hit game, was knocked out again as Brooklyn swamped the Giants, 6 to 1. Lefty Clark of the Robins came close to a no-hit performance himself, yielding only two hits. Herman, Bressler and Hendrick of the Robins got nine hits between them, Hendrick taking the league lead in batting.

Other clubs were idle.

. . On The Sport Jigger . .

By the Sports Editor

What part do organized sports play in the life of a community like East Liverpool?

—o—

Without going into detailed discussion of the value of outdoor exercise, the effect of recreation on the mental makeup of the individual and other advantages which are so well known that they need not be enumerated, we present some figures.

—o—

The Inter-City Baseball league, the "major league" of district summertime sports, has a roster of four clubs. Each club will have an average of 18 players. That makes 72 young men playing ball in that circuit.

—o—

The Community Baseball league also is made up of four teams. Assume that it has a roster as large as that of the Inter-City group, which undoubtedly it has. That makes 72 more.

—o—

The Review Recreation, or softball loop, takes in eight clubs of 15 players each. That adds 120 to the list.

—o—

And beside that, there are at least 100 other young men playing ball on independent teams, shop teams, plant teams, etc., not affiliated with any league.

—o—

Add 'em up and you will observe that there are 264 young men playing in the three organized leagues; add the unattached 100 and you have an imposing total of 364 youths actively taking part in community sports.

—o—

And it doesn't end there.

—o—

These teams will play something in the neighborhood of 300 games during the season. Say that an average of 200 persons attend each game, which is a very low figure, considering the fact that Inter-City League crowds run toward 1,000 or more at times. But at an average of 200 per game, the fact remains . . .

—o—

That there are approximately 60,000 attendances at summer sport contests here.

—o—

Baseball players buy uniforms, gloves, equipment and various paraphernalia.

—o—

These 60,000 attendances are registered after patrons ride street cars and automobiles. They dress appropriately to attend these athletic exhibitions. Restaurants and similar establishments benefit.

—o—

It seems that sports DO play an important part in the life of not only this, but any community.

—o—

An unkempt individual was seen roaming aimlessly in the vicinity of Churchill Downs Monday morning. "Whata you-all lookin' for?" inquired a facetious native. "Some of that blue grass?"

"No," came the sad reply, "but have you seen any Blue Larkspur?"

Soft Ball Loop To Go June 3

Pilots Favor Eight Clubs Instead of Twelve.

INITIAL steps in the reorganization of the Review Recreation league were taken at a meeting of managers and team representatives last night at the Y. M. C. A.

The various pilots voted to go for an eight-club circuit, deeming a reduction in the number of teams more or less necessary as a result of the continued shortage of playing grounds.

From all indications, the league roster will consist of the Johannes Drugs, Smith News, Academy Billiards, Golden Flowers, Y. M. C. A., Newell Merchants, an East End club and probably K. T. K.

Several other clubs have tentatively discussed entering the circuit but were not represented at last night's session and have failed to take definite action of any nature.

Several of the old clubs will be missing this year, including the Heimies, which has been one of the leading contenders both last season and the year before.

The managers voted to pry off the lid June 3. With each club playing two games a week, the season will close during the first week in September.

Start of the campaign has purposely been delayed this spring in order to avoid rainy weather and postponements.

Eligibility lists are to be filed prior to the opening of the season and players may be traded, or team rosters changed at any time, so long as the limit is observed, until Aug. 10, the deadline. After that the clubs must finish with the players they have at that time. This will prevent "loading up" for the final series.

Sam Gray, ace of the Browns' pitching staff, came to life and beat the White Sox, 6 to 3.

Story of Adventurous Youth, Mystery, Fortune and a Girl.

By Herman Landon

Hammer clows sounded somewhere. Evidently some of the men were engaged in fortifying the supports of the house where the danger was greatest. It semed a grotesquely trivial undertaking to Hannan. Didn't they krow that Viola was at the mercy of the terrors behind the iron door? Perhaps already——

He thrust the maddening thought from him. His body was all chills and hot flashes. He tried to put all disturbing thoughts from him. If he was to accomplish anything, he must have a clear head and a steady hand. He looked into the library. A candle was burning feebly on a table. Some one was sleeping in an armchair, and at the sleeper's feet was a tall glass, its inside flecked with white foam. Hannan moved swiftly across the floor. He paused for a moment and looked up at Old Winthrop's portrait, studying the grim set of the lips, the brightness of the eyes.

He chuckled nervously. Nothing but imagination, of course, but he fancied the austere lips had parted in a smile of encouragement. Old Winthrop understood!

Now he hastened down the little hall and up to the iron door. He clutched the handle. A sense of awe rushed upon him. What would happen? Would a bolt of destruction strike him? Old Winthrop's clock was ticking, emphasizing an oft-repeated warning of cloaked terrors that might spring into life the moment he opened the door. Only last night his father had repeated that warning, and he had hinted at some monstrous force lurking behind this very door. And Hannan had given his solemn promise that he would not enter.

He shrugged. Old Winthrop could not have foreseen an emergency like this. Hannan's heart was full of a love and a fear that reduced a dead man's interdiction to nothingness. A promise had no weight against Viola's peril. Wouldn't his father despise him if he failed the girl he loved?

His doubts had been a matter of moments only. Now, with brain afire and body trembling, he pulled hard at the knob. The door moved heavily, as if reluctant to yield its secrets. For an instant he waited to ease the violent pounding against his ribs. Again he pulled, and out of the dread-laden darkness a voice spoke— Old Winthrop's voice.

"If you value your life, do not enter until the clock stops."

A small, nervous laugh broke from Hannan's lips. A voice, even a dead man's vonce, must not stop him now. Besides, it had an unnatural sound, like that of a dull needle scraping a phonograph record. The door swung wide, and he stepped across the forbidden threshold. He was inside the forbidden room!

He exhaled a long breath, as if to throw off the heavy depression that suddenly seized him. There was something stifling, something evil in the air. Blood-freezing fancies leaped upon him out of the awful darkness on all sides. He moved forward, goaded by the single impulse burning in his brain. He must find Viola even if his very next step should mean death.

Suddenly he paused. A bell was pealing somewhere. It was a soft and melodius sound, something like the chiming of Old Winthrop's clock, yet there was a difference. There was something ominous, something sinister about this sound. In the same instant he became aware that the iron door had started to close behind him, shutting off all hope of escape. Not that he was thinking of escape, and yet——

Suddenly his eyes fixed rigidly on two blazing points in the distance. It was if two menacing ey s of fire were staring at him. Somehow he pictured a beast with drips of venom slavering from its jaws. A low, threatening growl came. Lambent streaks of fire played in the darkness. Swiftly and silently something rushed upon him.

He cried out in sheer horror. He heard the iron door close with a clang. And now a loathsome shape was at his throat, choking him in a furry, monstrously powerful clutch, bearing him down. Ferocious fangs were tearing his flesh.

He fought, striking out blindly with torn fists, scratching, clawing, pounding. A single thought rallied his ebbing strength. Viola! He must live. He must throttle this cile thing that was maiming him. A hot, strangling agony was at his throat. His lungs were screaming for air. A sickening, miasmic breath was defiling his face. He heaved with all the frenzied strength he could summon. Now——

But the thing was upon him again, drops of fire trickling from its ravenous jaws, its murderous claws ripping his flesh. His lungs were bursting. A growling, hissing fury was tossing him about as a cat does a mouse. His tortured body could endure no more. His strength was failing. He was sinking, sinking * * *

"Cerberus," called a voice. "That's enough. Come here."

There was a pause. He lay still. Paws were gliding away in the darkness. Numbness was stealing over him. Some one had spoken. His brain had absorbed the words mechanically, as a sponge absorbs water. Cerberus * * * The three-headed monster guarding the entrance to the infernal regions. Viola was somewhere in those awful regions. Viola. * * *

A light was shining in his face. He opened his heavy-lidded eyes, but did not move. His body felt crushed and torn. Some one was standing over him looking down.

Behind the Forbidden Door.

"So, it's Hannan Martenet," said a voice. "Poor fool!"

The words fell emptily on Hannan's ears. They meant nothing, but that voice! It was edged with something evil. He could not see the face of the speaker, but he felt it must be repulsive in the extreme if it matched that voice.

"Where—where's Viola?" he stammered faintly.

The man standing over him merely laughed, then called out harshly: "Maxwell! Oh, Maxwell! Come here."

"What is it?"

"Cerberus has been amusing himself with your son. He looks like Old Winthrop."

An exclamation of distress sounded "Hannan—Hannan! After I warned you— can you get up, my boy? There—let me help you."

Hannan looked up For the first time in years he saw his father's face –a gray, tired face with sad, kindly eyes. He took Maxwell's hand. With great difficulty he gained his feet. Leaning weakly against his father's shoulder, he balanced himself. With a shrug the other man walked away.

"You're hurt—terribly hurt!" Maxwell exclaimed. "Oh, my boy, I wish you hadn't— But there — shan't scold. You're young, and Old Winthrop's hot blood runs in your veins. Now you are going to undress and lie down and I'll dress your wounds. Put your hand on my shoulder—just like that. Now——"

Hannan staggered forward. He felt very faint. The long, dim room heavy and rocked before his eyes. Suddenly he paused.

"Tell me dad. Where's — Viola?"

"Who? Oh, the young woman?" Maxwell's tired eyes looked with grave concern into his son's torn and bleeding face. "So that's it. I understand, my boy. That's why you——"

"Where is she?" Hannan insisted.

"Not far away. And she is all right. Nothing serious has happened to her yet."

"Yet!" the little word sounded terrifying. Put for the present, at any rate, Viola was safe.

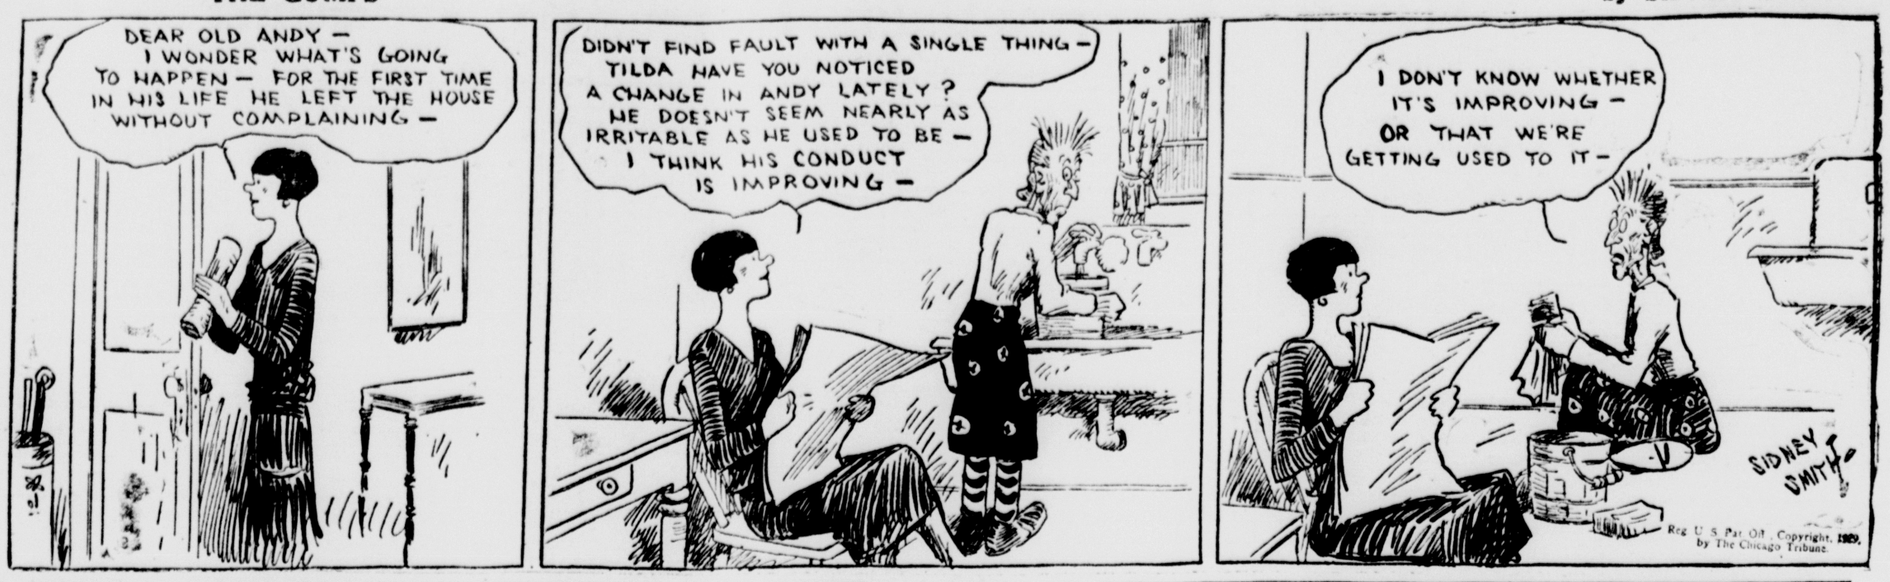

The fragance of flowers and a current of cool air greeted Hannan's senses as he returned to consciousness. He was lying in a comfortable bed in a small, pleasant room, and the administration of soothing lotions had eased the smarting of his wounds. There were no windows, but he could inspect his surroundings in the light of a small bedside lamp.

His mind moved drowsily, slipping from one impression to another. This room in which he found himself must be a part of Old Winthrop's sanctuary. He had braved the terrors of the forbidden door. He shuddered at the recollection. Those eyes of flame! Those slavering jaws! Those bruising fangs! And Viola? Where was she now? His father had said that nothing serious had happened to her—yet. The ominous quality of that little word came back to him.

PICTURE PATTERN

FOR SISTER OR BROTHER

THE STYLE in white pique printed in gay balloon motifs in tones of pink and red, is an amusing, comfortable, serviceable play suit for either sister or brother. The front is in one piece, and back has drop seat which makes it easy to launder. The left leg may be left free and finished with button and button-holes, which adds a smart finish. The neck, gathered at front, is stitched to narrow band of plain pique. Nile green and white is very cute. Red and white checked gingham, candy stripe percale, pale blue linen, khaki cloth and pongee other dependable fabrics.

THE PATTERN No. 2808 is designed for youngsters of 2, 4 and 6 years and has illustrations in Pictures of entire construction of garment.

In ordering pattern clip the design shown or order by number, and be sure to specify the size you want. Write your name and address plainly, enclosing 15 cents and mail to Fashion Department, East Liverpool Review. From 7 to 10 days are required for delivery of patterns.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

ANNIE LAURIE'S TIMELY ADVICE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my late teens and am engaged to a young man two years my senior. He is very attentive and kind to me and never breaks a date. We have gone together a little over a year. He loves me dearly, and tries in every way he can to make me happy.

For sometime he has been coaxing me to kiss him. But I have refused each time and would like to have your advice whether it is proper for a girl to kiss a boy when they are engaged.

I haven't any reasons for not kissing him, except I do not know whether it is the proper thing to do or not.

He sometimes acts like he thinks I don't love him as much as I should on account of this. But I really do love him and think he is the only one for me. He tells me whether I kiss him or not he will be the same towards me. PET.

PET: When a girl is engaged, it puts an entirely different phase on things, my dear, as far as any display of affection is concerned. Of course, it is proper to kiss your fiance. I do not say that you should constantly "ept" but a kiss which is the sign of love, is quite permissible. So don't be afraid that you are doing anything to shock Mrs. Grundy when you kiss your fiance. And I wish you both a life of happiness.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a widow of twenty-four. There is a man of forty, rich and single, who has been courting me for about two years. He says he loves me more than life itself, but he never talks about marriage, and when I try to intimate it, he changes the subject.

What shall I do, because I love him dearly, though I never told him.

BLACK PEARL.

BLAC PEARL: Evidently your suitor is not matrimonially inclined. So I am afraid there is nothing you can do, puntil he himself makes a proposal of marriage.
